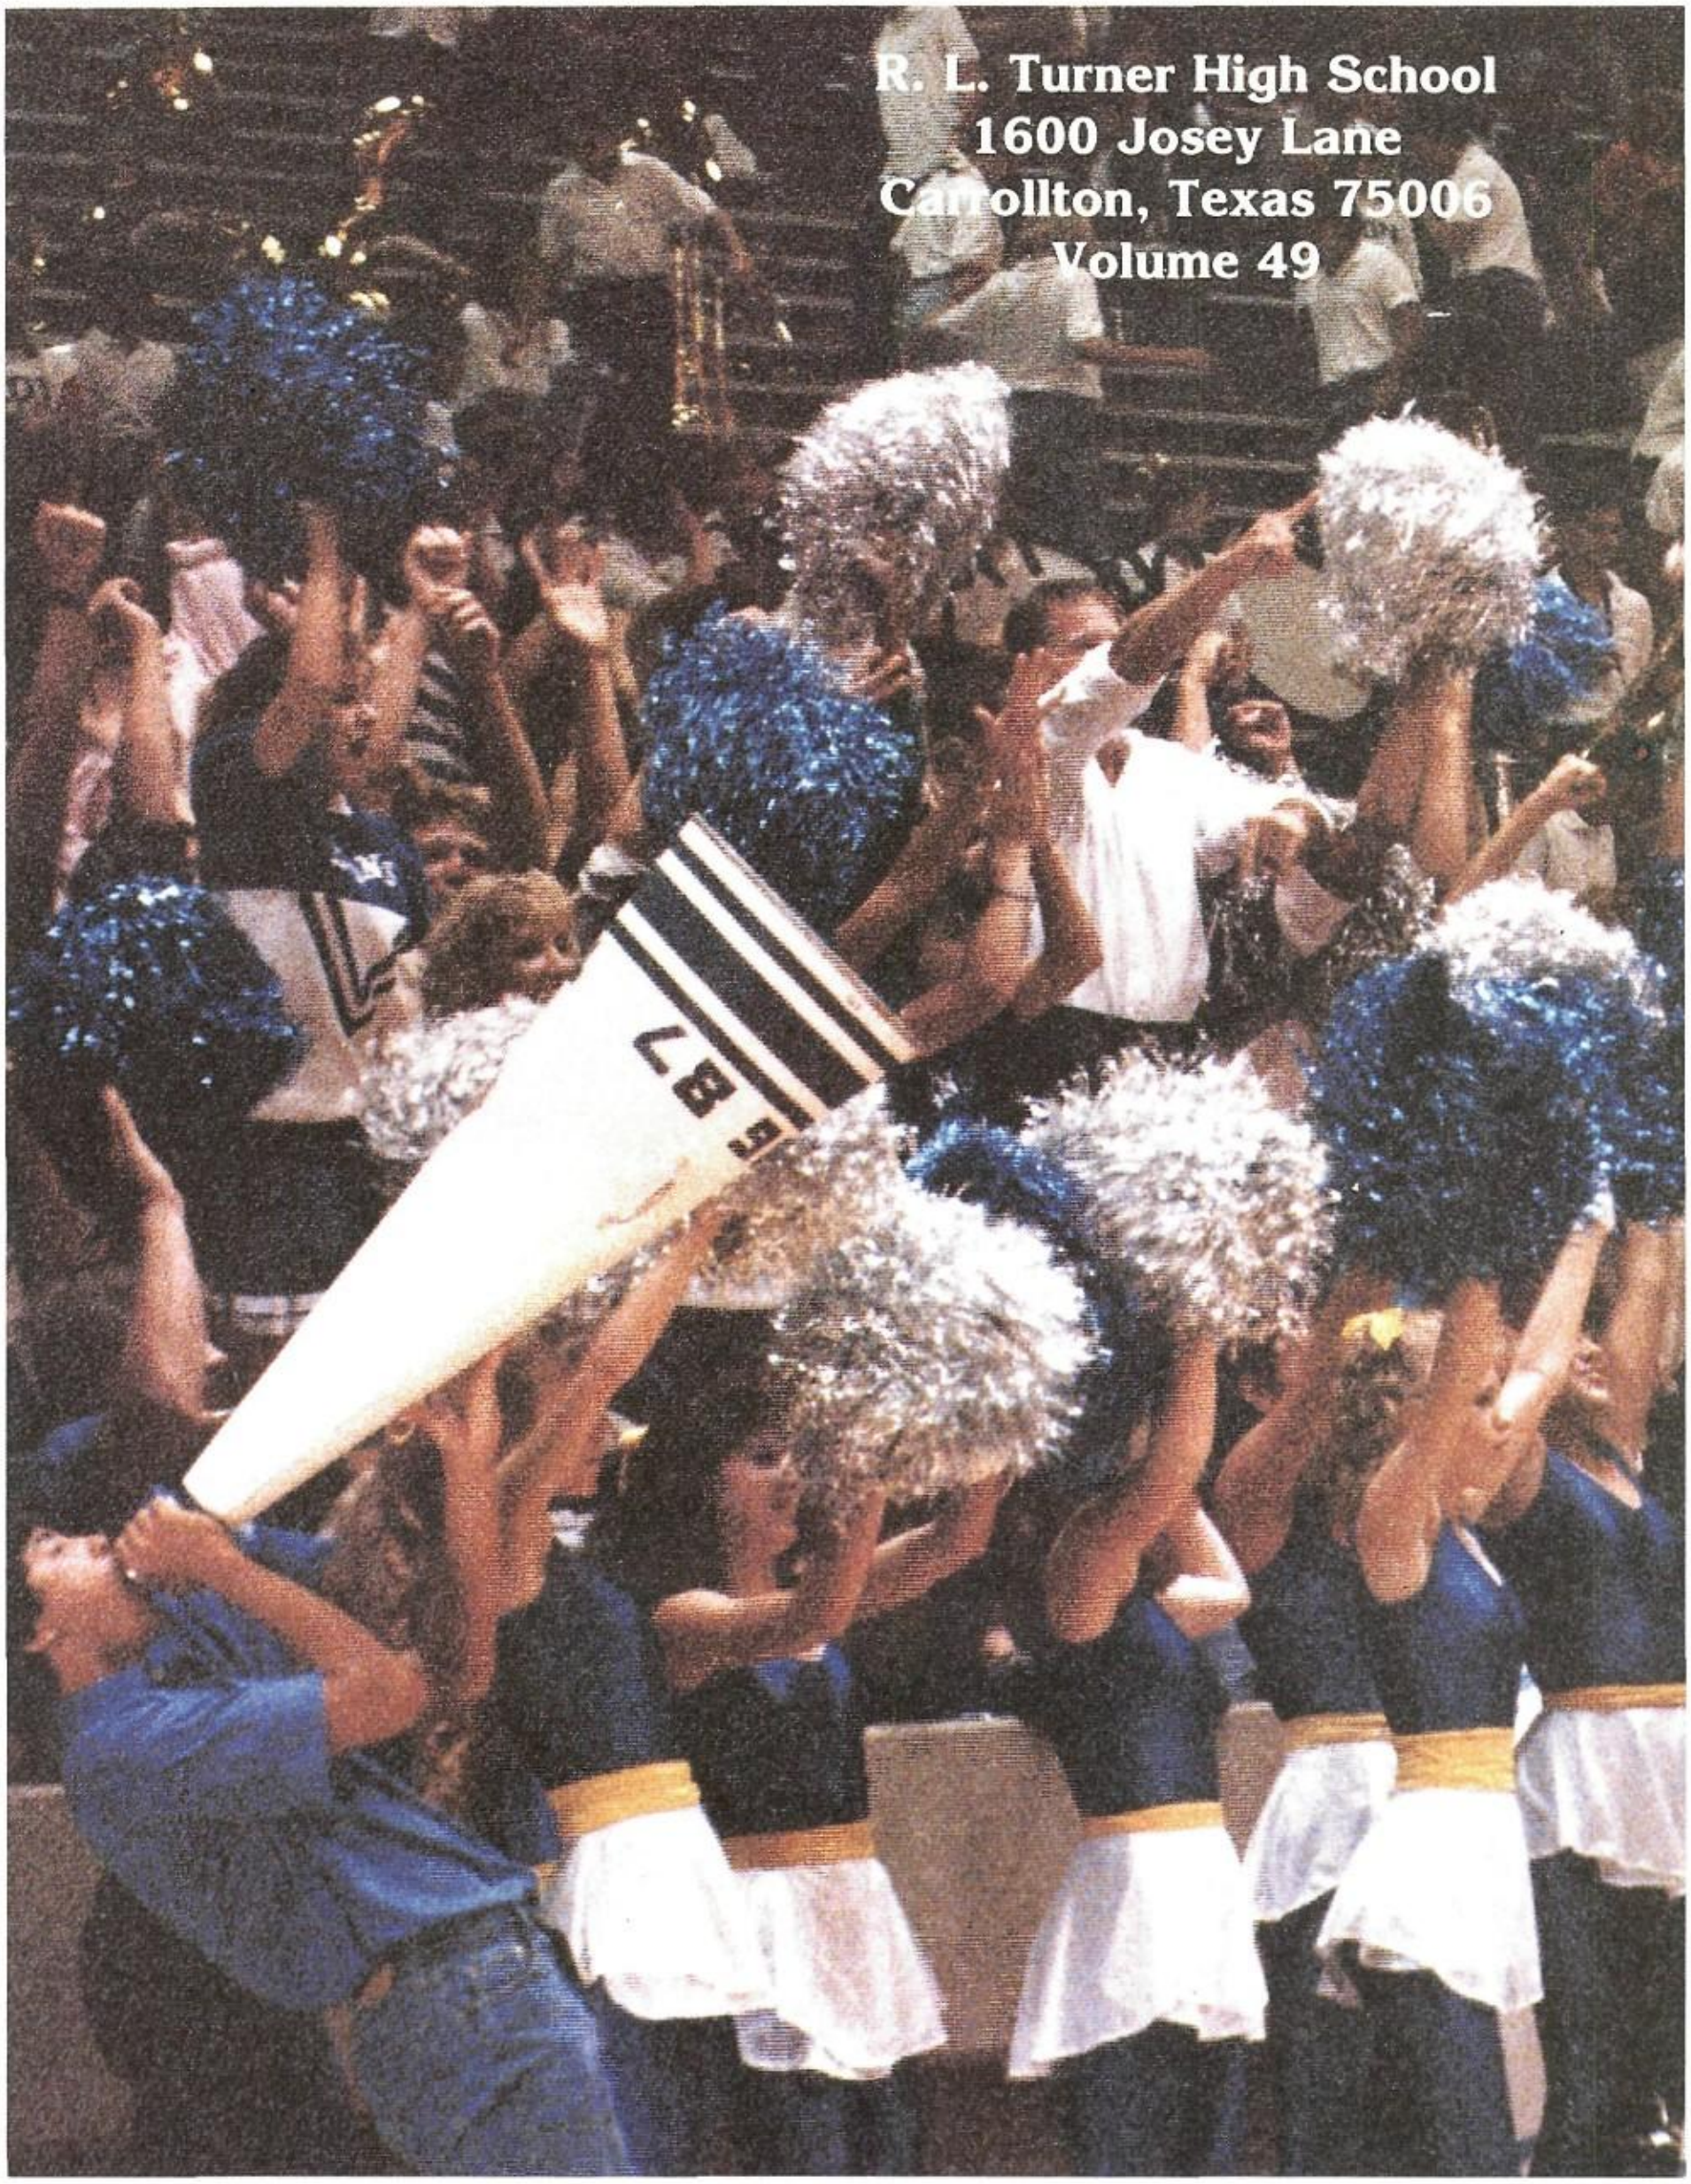
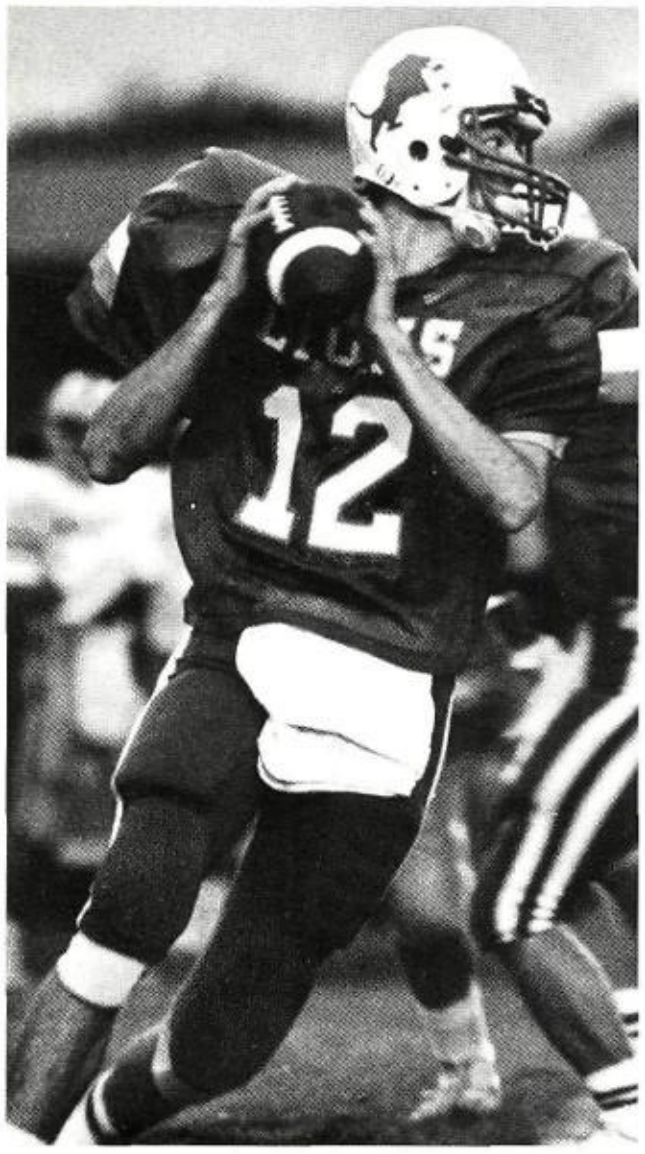
WITH A Touch OF BLUE



R. L. Turner High School
1600 Josey Lane
Carrollton, Texas 75006
Volume 49

Dropping back to pass, junior Steve Feeney looks for an open man at a September football game against Marcus High School.



Precious moments

Treasure Flashes of Blue

The year had just begun, and yet some students wished it was over. Looking at the teenagers in this world, it seems they are always wanting more yet not knowing what to do with it. More friends — forgetting the old. More money — spending it all anyway. Easier classes — barely passing. Cooler teachers — but then not even getting on their good side. And still asking, "Why do we have it so hard?"

Picture this: no more sock hops, pep rallies, football games, basketball games, Homecoming Dances, Proms, Valentine Dances, parking lot jams, holding hands in the hall, and yearbooks. Now be realistic; that's having it hard.

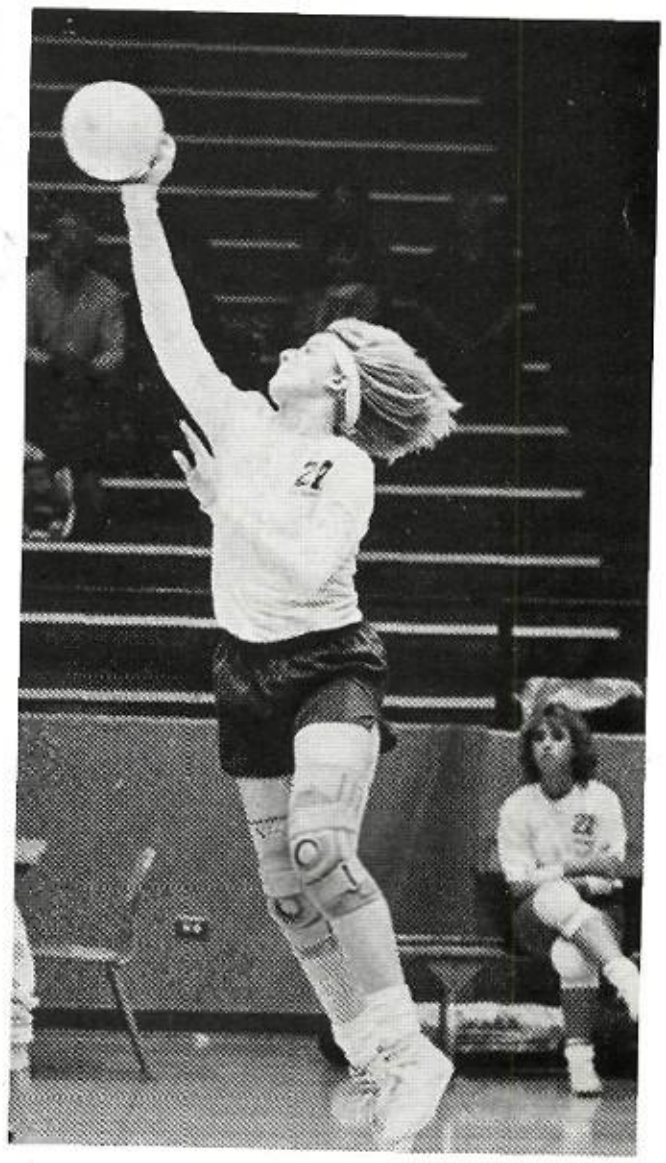
Be patient; take each day one at a time, and remember every last one of them because "With a Flash of Blue" it was soon over.

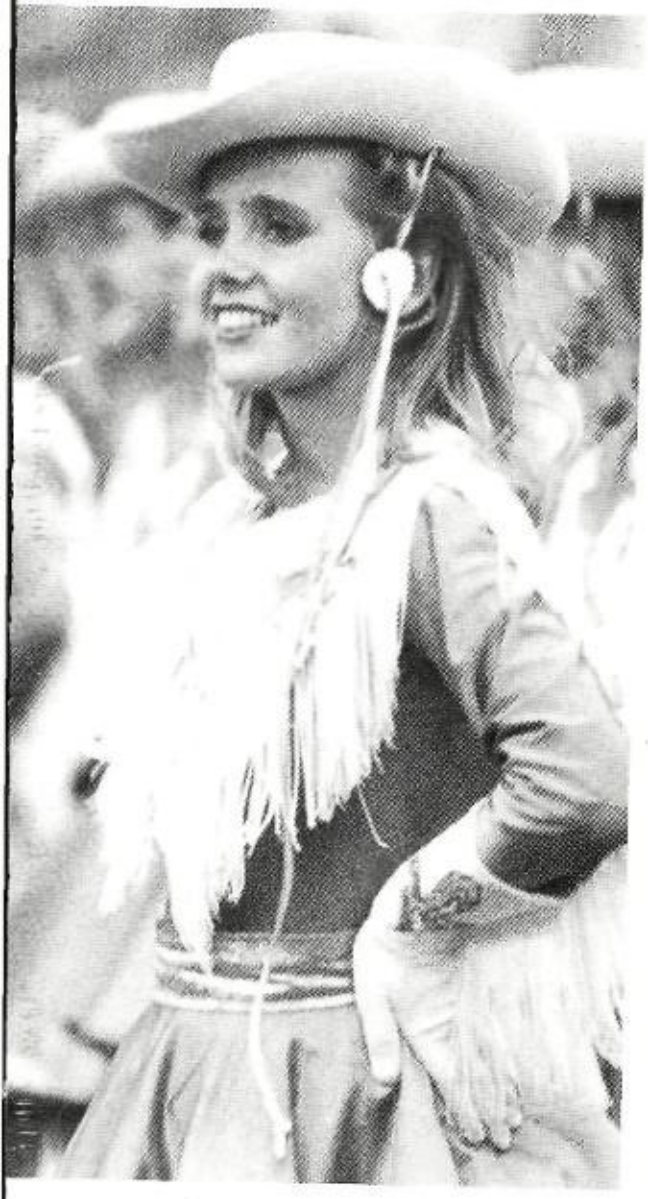
At a pep rally the freshmen give it their all during spirit competition.

Helping cheer the football team to victory, a Lion mascot hints at a touchdown.

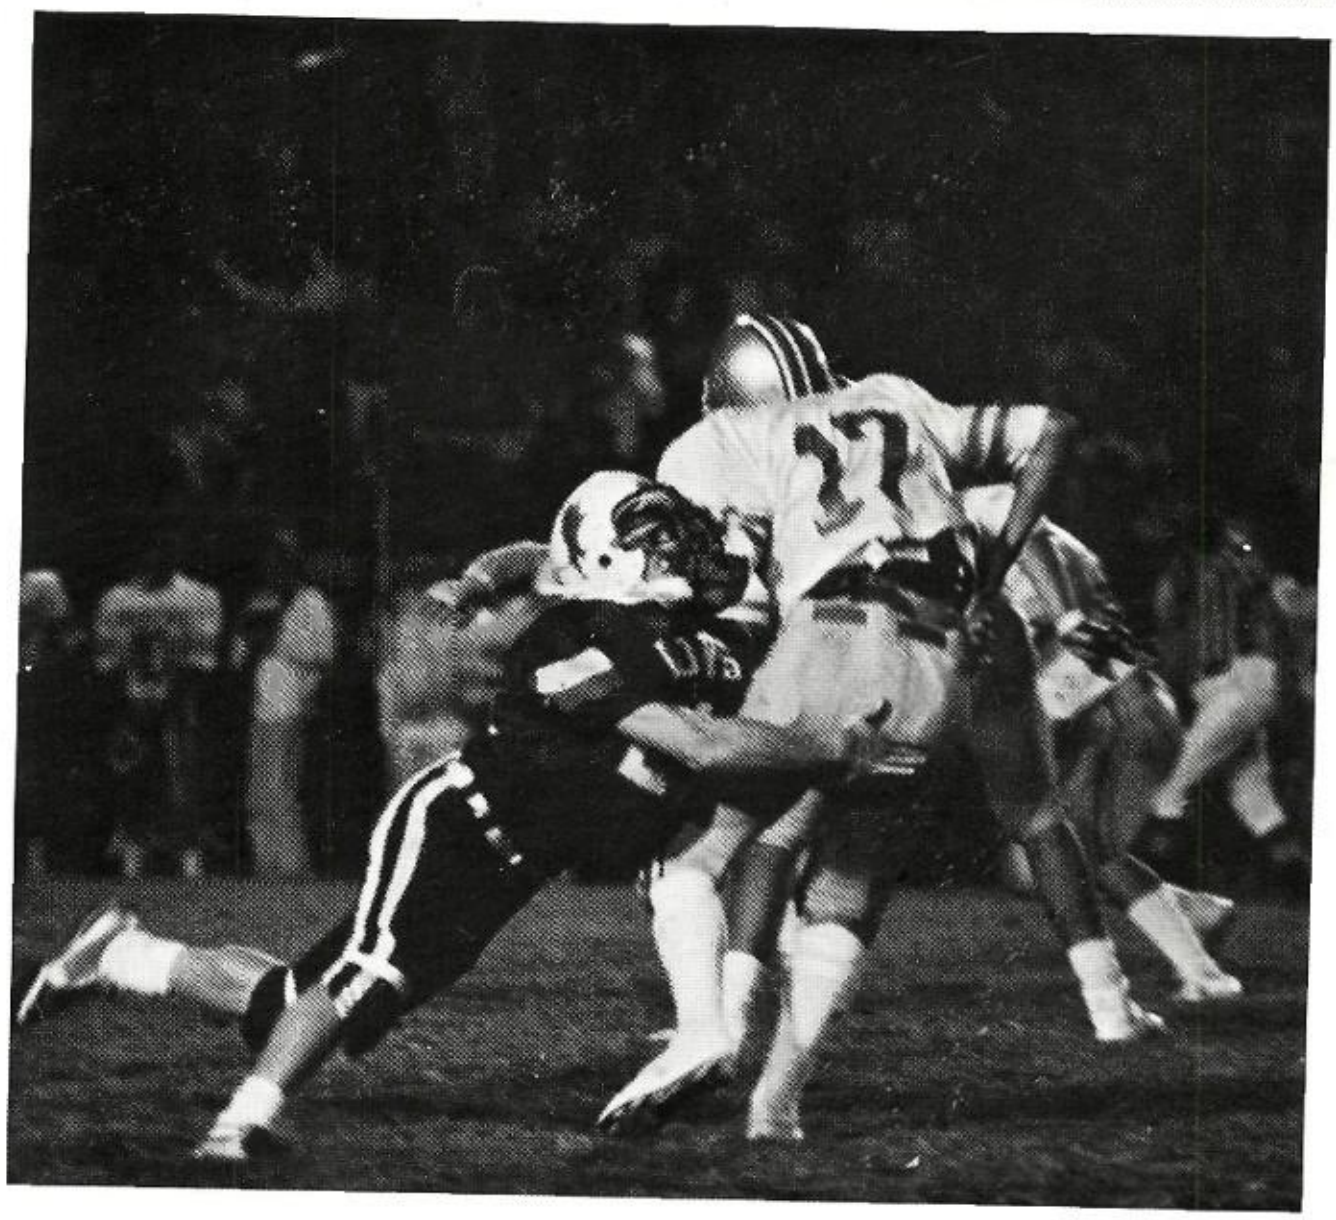
With big hopes the Lions rush on the field before their first home game on Sept. 18.

Soaring high into the air, junior Cathy Young hammers the ball against Berkner High.





Smiling, junior Lionette lieutenant Shelley Stone waits to perform for a halftime show.

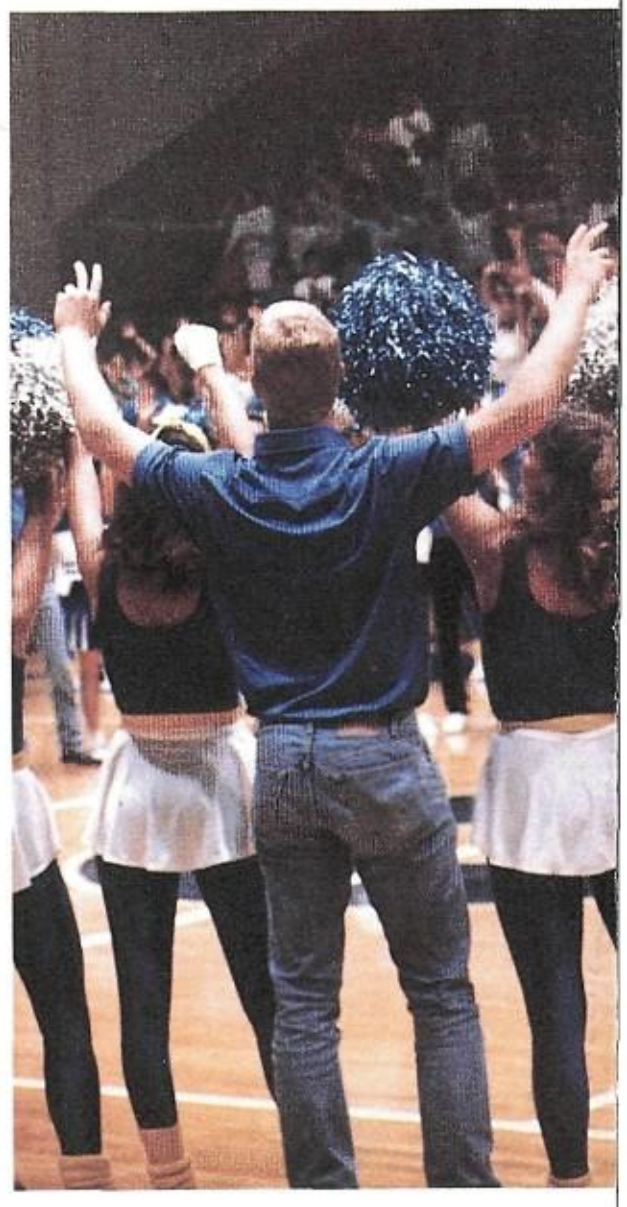


David Clem, senior, stops a Marcus Marauder back in his tracks in a September game.

Lionette lieutenant Monica Todd performs at a September game at Standridge Stadium.

Patiently waiting, band members Barbara Bowen, Jenny Harrison, and Becky Anderson stand on the sidelines ready to perform.

Attempting to arouse the crowd during a September pep rally, the varsity cheerleaders perform a familiar cheer.



Proudly raising their hands, senior Matt Hannum and the Lionettes sing along with the alma mater at a September pep rally in the big gym.

Finishing off a new routine, the Lionettes freeze their last step with style at a pep rally in the boys' gym.

During a pep rally, freshman Karla Morris performs a song on the bells for the students.

Screaming Chants

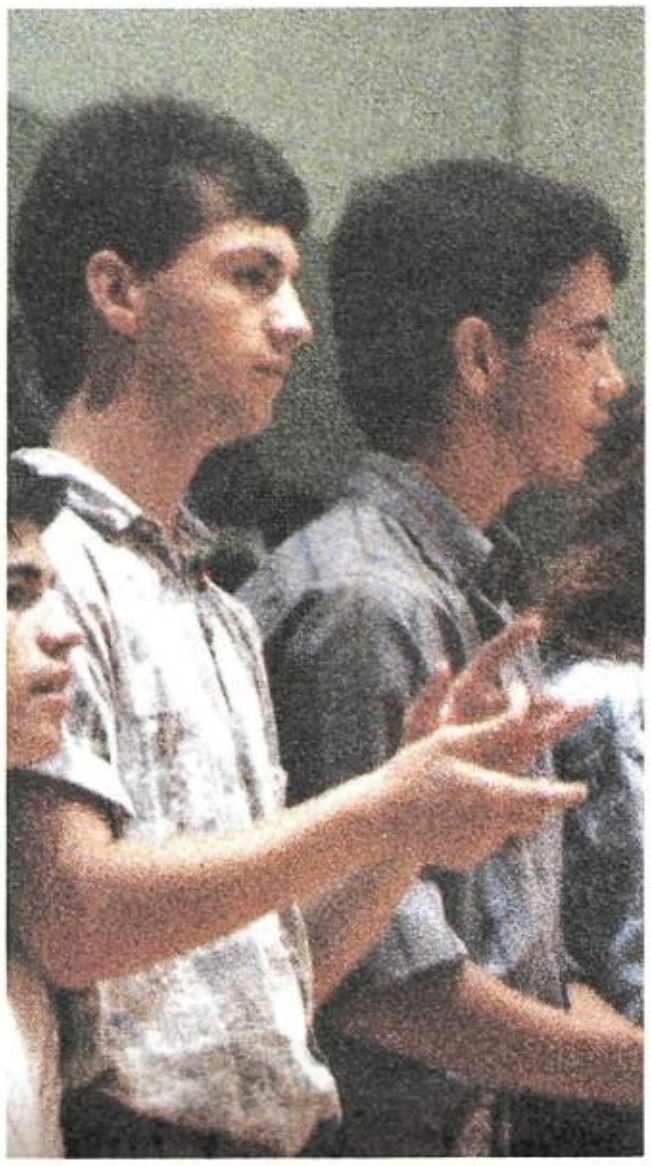
Rallies Generate Spirit

Earsplitting comes to mind when remembering pep rallies — students screaming various chants at the top of their lungs, such as "seniors, seniors or juniors, juniors!!" At one pep rally, head football coach Charlie Lyles said, "It's not seniors, juniors, sophomores, or freshmen; it's L I O N S!"

"Pep rallies are important spirit raisers for both the teams and the students," commented senior Susannah Webb. Pep rallies, which were held in the boys' gym after school, drew students who had pride in their school and the activities displayed by the teams, winning or losing.

Some of the events normally found at the pep rallies were the drum cadence, Lionette routines, familiar tunes played by the band, skits poking fun at the weekly opponent, and the spirit competition. The spirit competition seemed to be a favorite with the students this year, especially the freshmen, considering all 666 of them could out-scream any of the upperclassmen.

Looking on at a pep rally, senior Jeremy Varnell gives the Lions a hand.



Screaming, the freshmen try to succeed in winning the spirit competition at the first pep rally, which was held in the boys' gym.

By huddling up, the varsity football team builds up the momentum of the crowd at an afternoon pep rally.

Sophomores Travis Barlow and Kathy Moore enjoy a slow dance at an October sock hop.

Uninhibited dancing

New sounds at sock hops

When you hear the words sock hop, you automatically think of loud music, people doing outrageously wild dances, and shoes lying around in the gym foyer — lots of shoes.

A new tradition was started for proof of payment at sock hops. After walking in the foyer door and paying the $2 cover charge, instead of last year's usual stamp on the back side of the hand, students were greeted with a, "No, we don't do it there anymore" and got stamped on the inner wrist.

The Carrollton Police Department came to the sock hops to ensure that campus rules were being followed. School Resource Officer James Shields was there also.

The Senior Executive Committee acquired new sound equipment with which to play better music. Senior Executive Committee member Susannah Webb commented, "People complained about the music, but there's no way we can please everyone."

No matter what kind of music was played, there seemed to be people dancing everywhere you turned.

Having a good time at an October sock hop, these students show their exuberance.

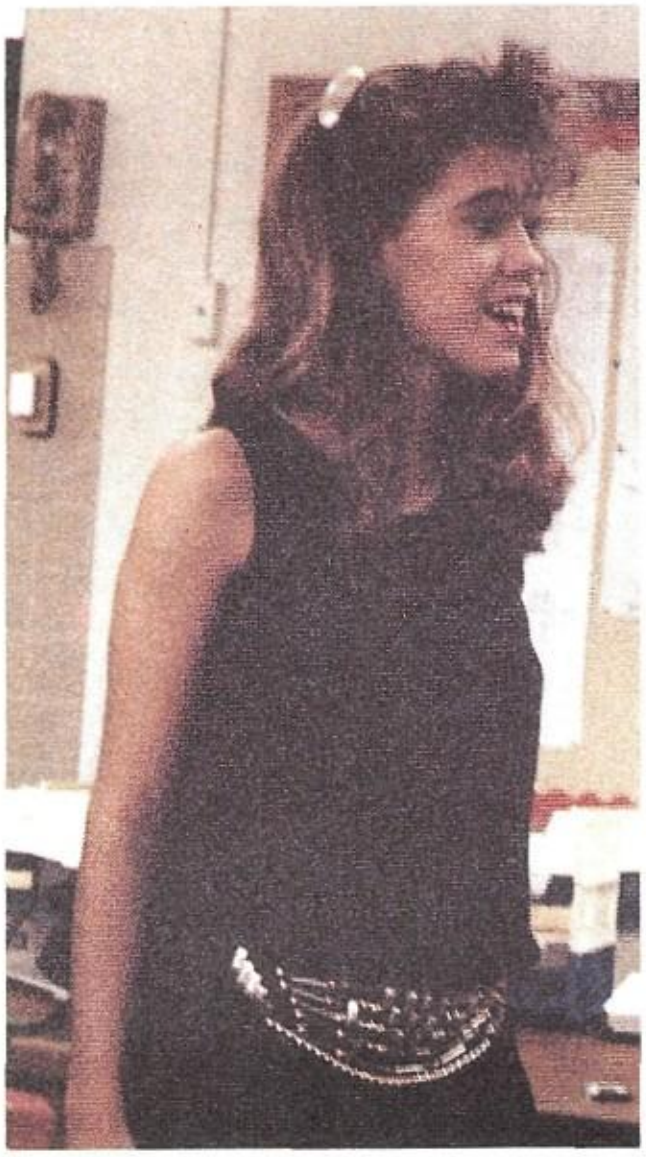
Popular with the students were big belts, which senior Wendi Washam displays.



Original fashion

Jeans retain popularity

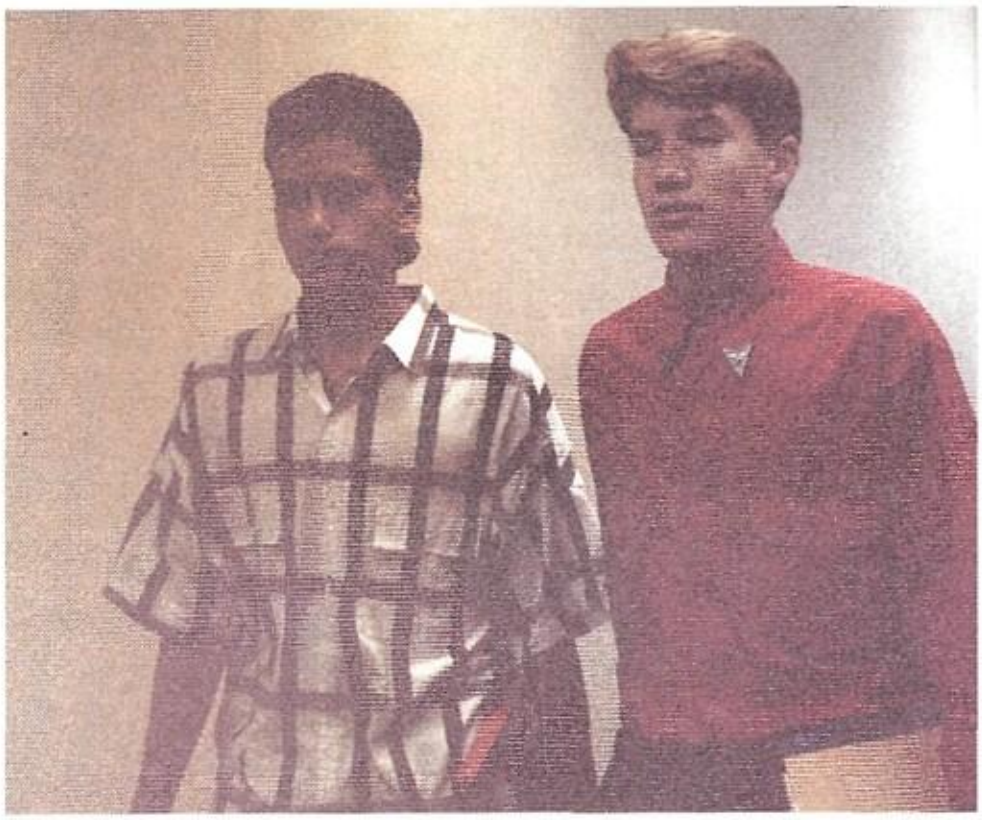
Originality was the name of the game in fashion this year. Students wore what they wanted, whether it was a trend or their own original ideas.

One trend that was popular with the guys and the girls was last year's ever-so-popular Guess Jeans. By taking those jeans from last year and ripping them up, students created a new look.

The girls went for those outrageous mini-skirts this year. Flats, big purses, and lots of accessories completed the look.

Bugle Boy was the tune for the guys this year. By rolling up the bottom of their pant legs, the guys showed off their very fashionable Zodiac shoes. The shaved hairstyle was in for the guys — this is where they got original.

Some accessories that were in this year were bows, dress boots, and wooden jewelry. Espree, Guess, Bugle Boy, Genera, Code Bleu, and Forenza were some popular brand names on the student body. No matter what they wore, it seemed like everyone was in fashion this year.



While walking to his class with his friend, sophomore Rob Thomas shows off the cowboy look.

Sweatshirts were a hot item this year as junior Ricki Miller exhibits in her Algebra II class.

Junior Michelle Goodnight displays her array of silver during her September driver's education class in the snack bar.

Senior Rich McAninch and his girlfriend, junior Becky Thompson, watch their schoolmates dance at a sock hop in October.

Cautious expression

Couples enjoy time together

This year students were cautioned not to overly express their feelings for one another in the halls. However, most couples seemed to cope with this caution.

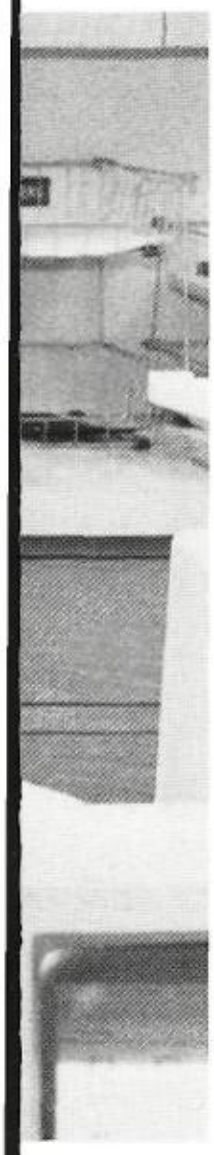
On the traditional carnation-sale day, the guys bought flowers for their special girls. Roses were also a popular gift item. Holding hands was also a popular trend for couples; at least they could embrace one another's palm.

Junior Sheila Wilkie said that a typical date for her and her boyfriend was "out to eat and a movie."

Some couples went to nearby parties, but not many — parties were generally where couples got together but not went together.

Other couples enjoyed being in the outdoors together. Playing tennis, swimming, running, and riding bikes were some popular ways couples spent quality time together and got a little exercise.

Whenever or wherever it was, couples always seemed to find time to share together.



Junior Christina Ramirez says goodbye to her boyfriend, senior Brent Lane, before they go to their sixth-period classes.

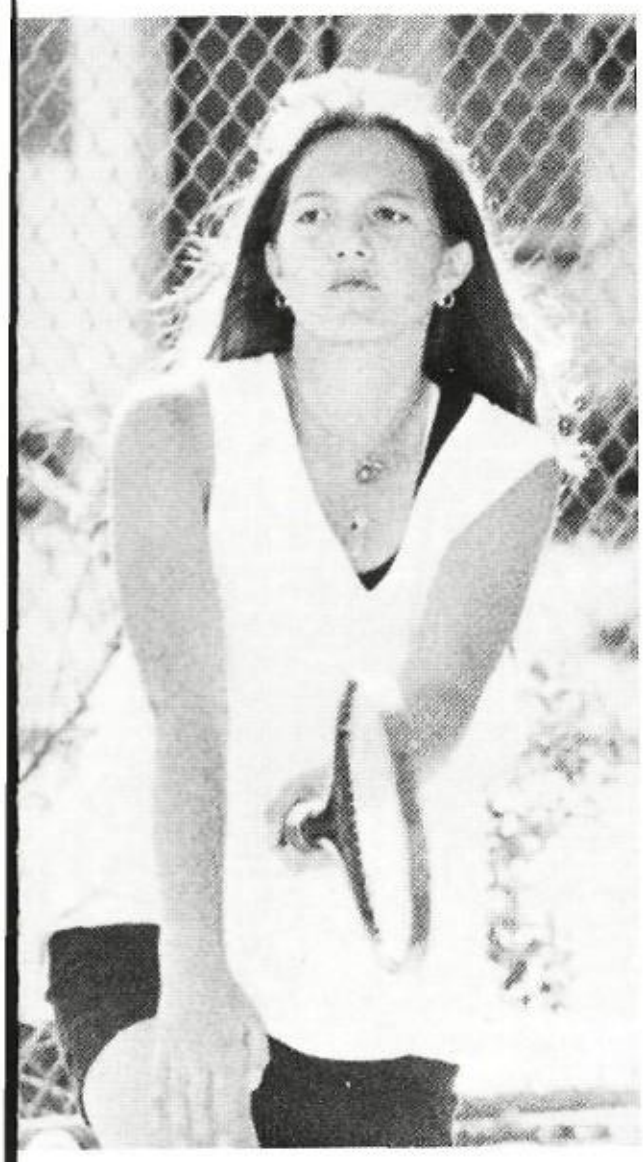
Varsity tennis player Kelly Petty, junior, keeps her eye on the ball while setting up to hit the ball with a forehand.



Sports scene

Lions meet the challenge

As the wind began to cool and the leaves began to fall, the sports scene heated up.

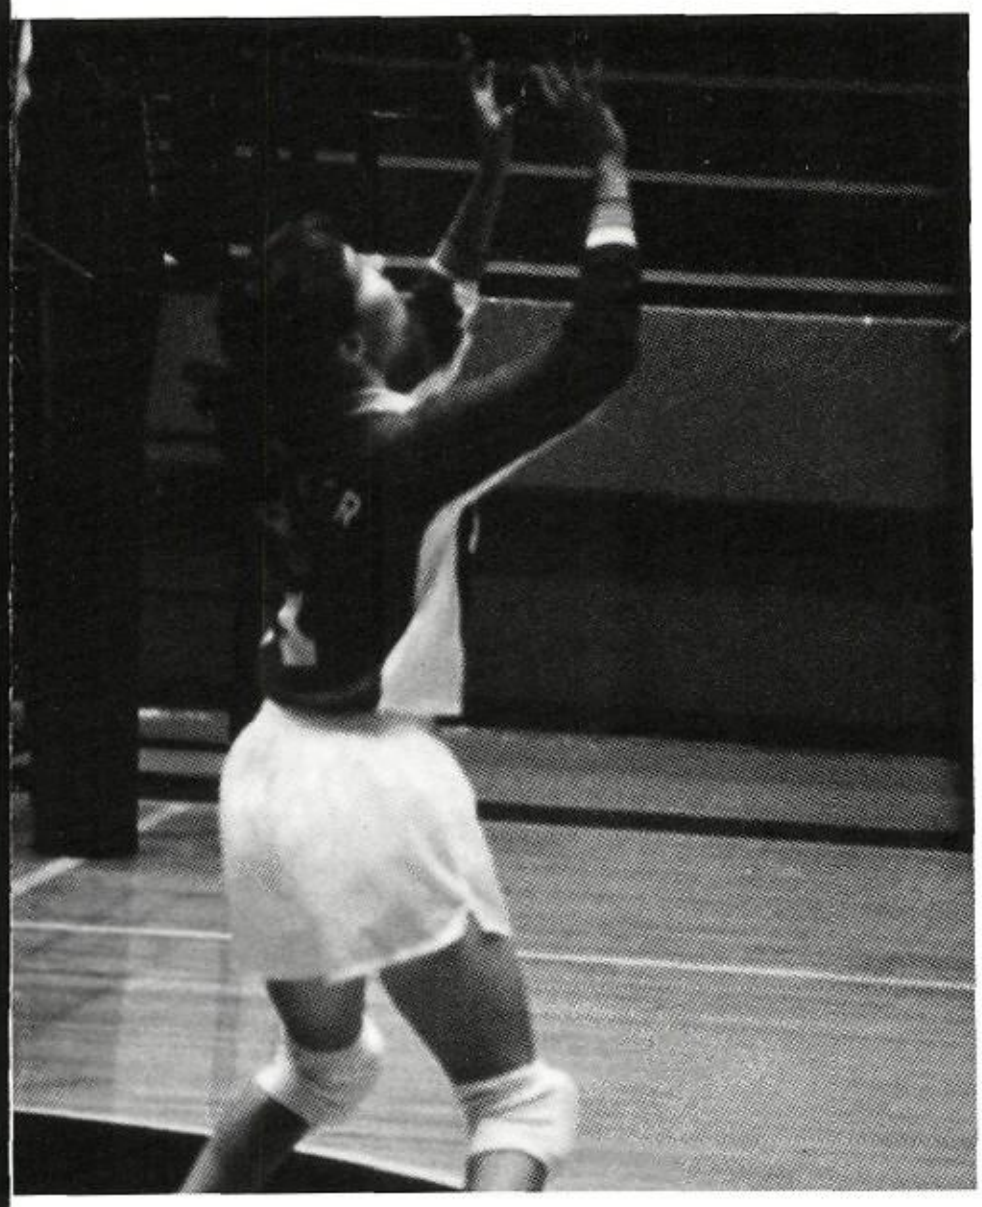
After last year's spring Blue and White game, the football team looked very promising this year. However, several injuries to key players at the start of the season dashed Coach Charlie Lyles' hopes for a winning season.

The varsity volleyball team got off to a great start, and once again the powerful spikers were contenders for district championship honors.

The girls' cross-country track team acquired a new coach this year. Ms. Cathy Webb coached athletics at Vivian Field Junior High School before joining the coaching staff here, taking the role of the former coach, Mr. Larry Brooks.

With the chill of fall in the air, the tennis team challenged the Highland Park Scots in a dual match on RLT's courts in October. Led by Coach Kerry Smith, the team looked forward to a promising season.

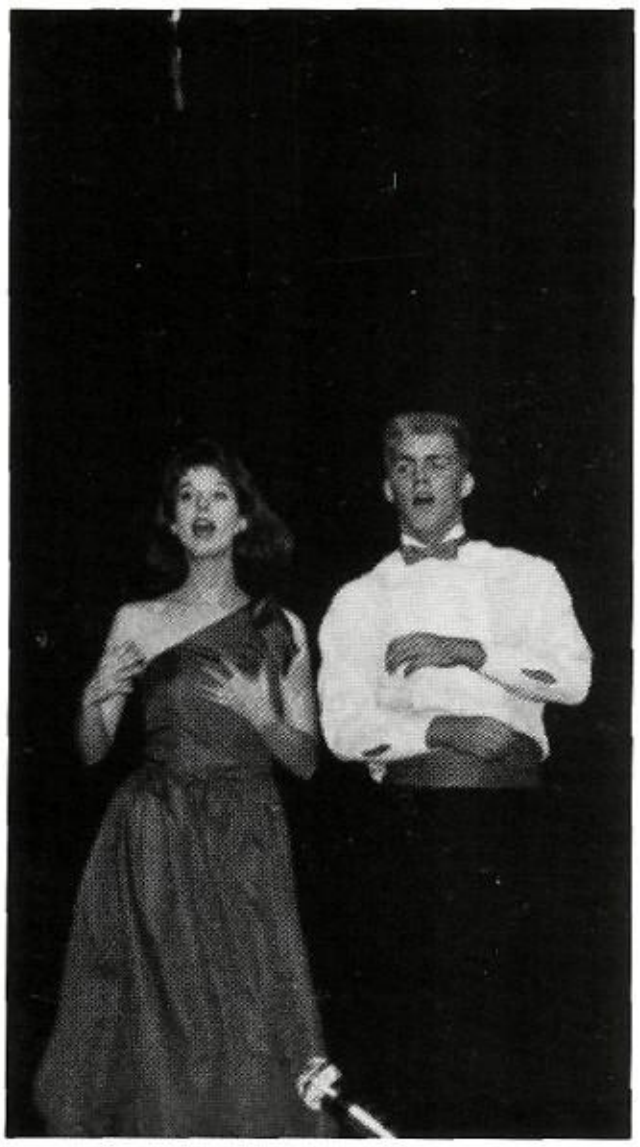
Ms. Jenifer Thomas, the new swim team coach, assumed the duties at the helm of the school's aquanauts. Coach Thomas guided the volleyball squad at Grand Prairie last year before she started coaching here. Junior Kimberly Dean commented, "I like our new coach a lot. She's young, energetic, and really excited about things, and that makes us get excited. She changed practices to mornings, and now we're practicing with Newman Smith. I think these changes are working to our advantage."



Senior Michaele Drake, varsity volleyball player, prepares to set the ball.

Senior Diana Arbelaez concentrates on her scrimmage match with one of her teammates after school at the back tennis courts.

Symbany members senior Tracy Biscomb and sophomore Travis Barlow perform the opening act at the Lion Revue in October.



Presenting a Revue

Performers showcase talent

Approximately two hours and 23 acts long, the Lion Revue was staged by the choral department Thursday, Oct. 22, in the auditorium.

Some of the skits presented included the Student Senate doing a segment of a soap opera called "Rich People in Trouble," junior Paul Gilmore and senior Rob Laney doing a comedy routine called "Who's on First," and the Thespians doing a rap about our school.

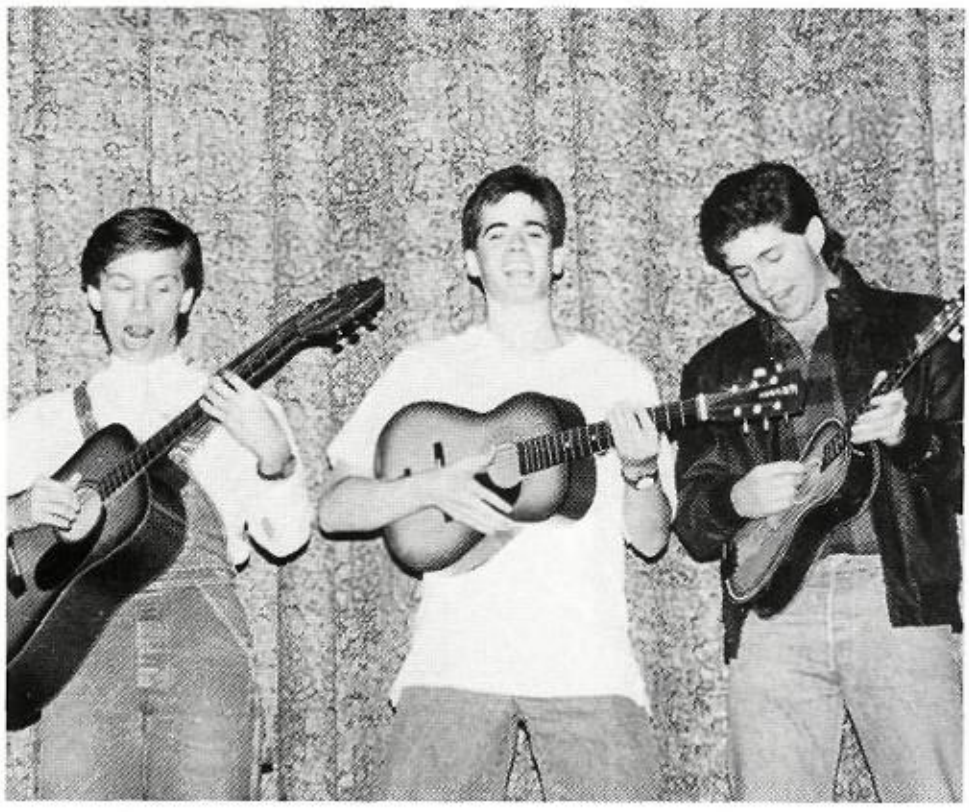
Some of the songs that were sung were done by senior Rob Laney singing "Misty," freshman John Solis singing "Memory," a band called the Archives playing Bon Jovi's "Wanted Dead or Alive," and senior Julie Scott singing religious ballads.

Some of the dances were the varsity cheerleaders doing a cheer, sophomore Christina Connell dancing to "Showdown," the Lionettes doing a dance to "Boing Boom Chuck," junior Jennifer Davis doing a ballet dance, the choral ensemble doing a song and dance routine to "It Don't Mean a Thing if You Ain't Got That Swing," the Flag Corps doing a routine to "Louie Louie," and the junior-varsity cheerleaders doing a dance to "Tricky."

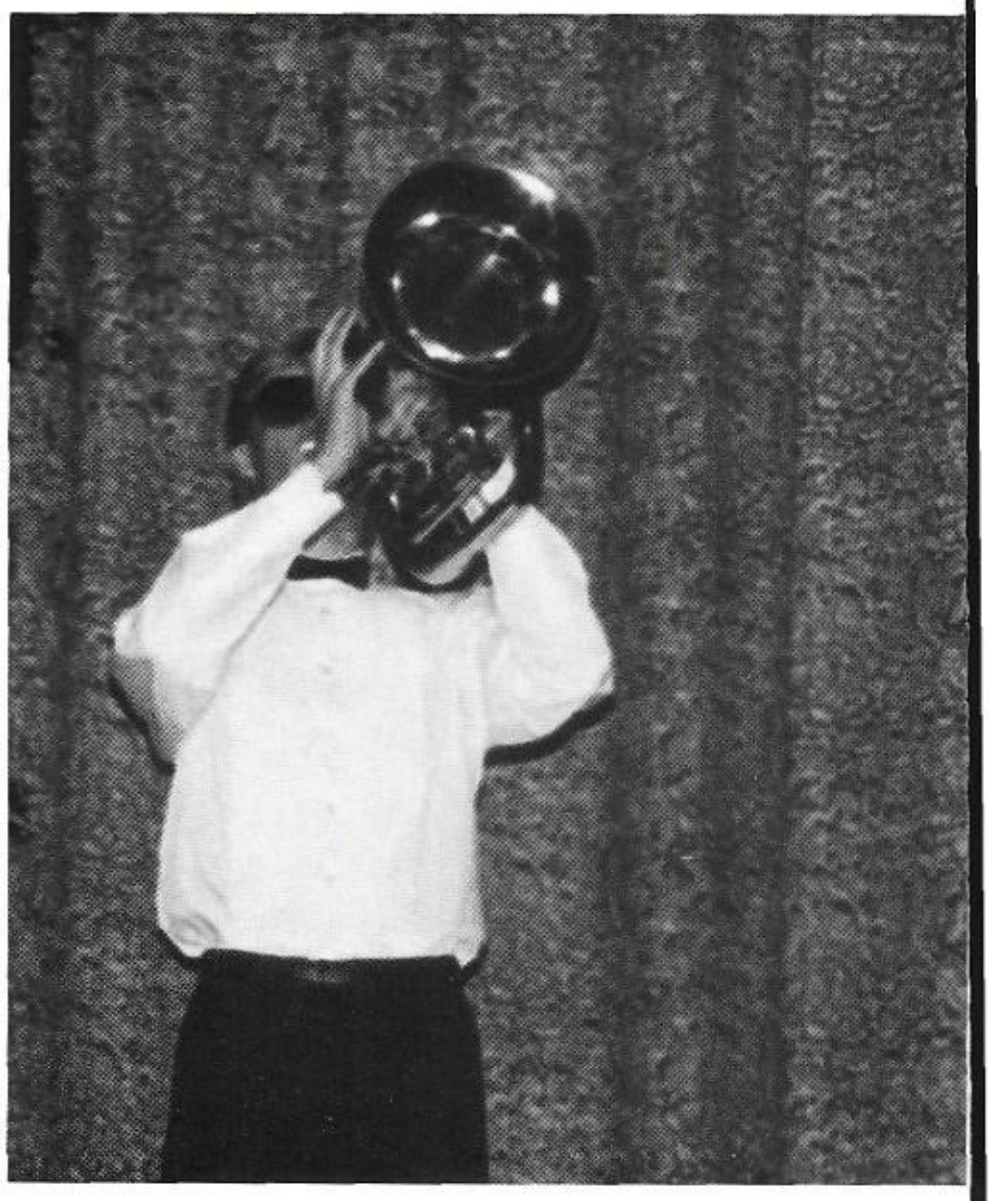
Other acts included senior Logan Flatt playing the baritone, senior Samona Wilcox playing the piano, and senior Brandon Sherbert playing the drums.

The masters of ceremonies — seniors Robin Stacy, Rob Laney, Dusty Haws, and Sherry Tackett — helped the show run smoothly by entertaining the audience while the acts were setting up.

Robin Stacy said, "I think the Lion Revue went smoother than ever this year. The variety of acts interested the majority of the people in the audience. I'm glad the show was a bit shorter this year because the audience wasn't so tired by the end."



Performing a skit, seniors Rob Laney, Dusty Haws, and Clay Palmer keep the audience entertained between acts at the Lion Revue Oct. 22 in the auditorium.



Senior Logan Flatt performs a skit by playing his euphonium at the Lion Revue on Oct. 22.

Between acts seniors Shannan Swanson, Sherry Tackett, and junior Jessica Morris perform a skit, allowing time for the next act to set up at the Lion Revue in October.

Homecoming hoopla

Revue, dance highlights

The Homecoming activities started out with the choral department's annual production of the Lion Revue. The show was Thursday, Oct. 22, in the auditorium and included 23 acts. The audience seemed to be most impressed by The Archives, who played Bon Jovi's hit "Wanted Dead or Alive," and Brandon Sherbert for his drum solo.

At the Homecoming pep rally, Oct. 23, senior Becky Morton was announced Football Sweetheart. Also announced were the winners of the hall decoration contest sponsored by Senior Executive Committee.

The Lionettes won the first-place prize of $75 for decorating the cafeteria, FHA won the second-place prize of $50 for decorating downstairs C-hall, and the foreign language department won the third-place prize of $25 for decorating downstairs B-hall.

During the halftime ceremonies at the game, which resulted in a victory for the opponent, the Lake Highlands Wildcats, the Homecoming queen and her court were presented. Shannan Swanson was announced queen. Senior princesses were Shelley Johnson and Adelina Macias, junior princess was Christina Ramirez, sophomore princess was Debra Moore, and the freshman princess was Tisha Drake.

The Homecoming dance was held Saturday, Oct. 24, in the cafeteria. The Student Senate picked "You Look So Good in Love" by country musician George Strait for the theme.

Waiting with her father, Lester Swanson, senior nominee Shannan Swanson awaits the announcement of Homecoming Queen.

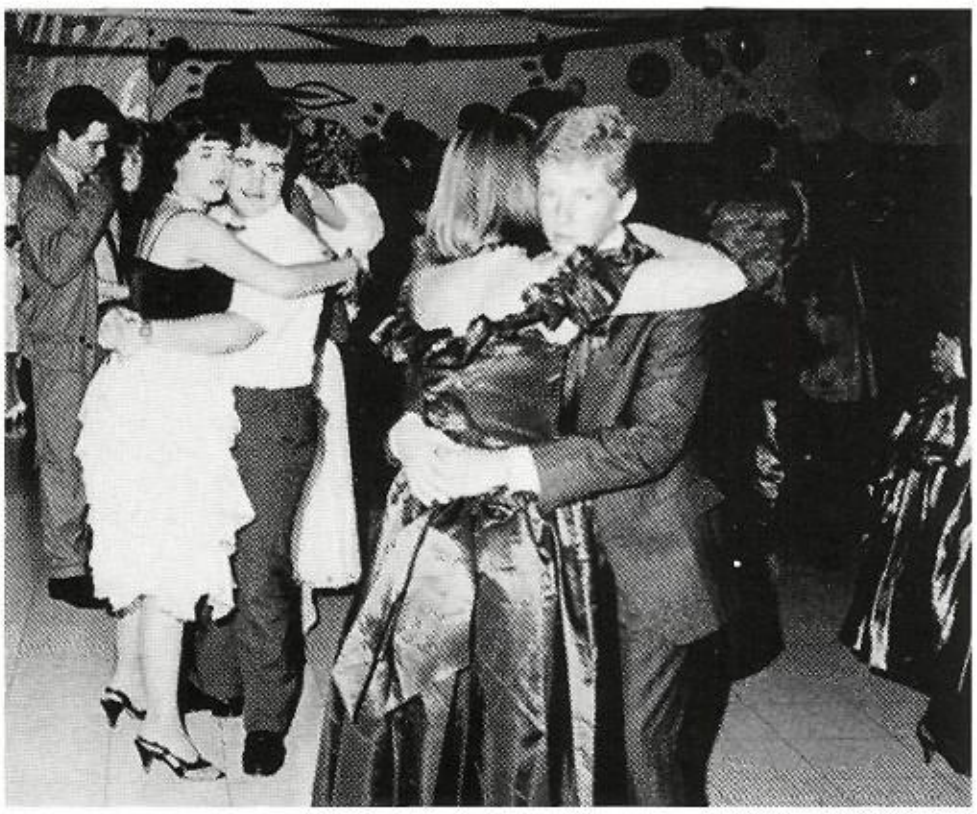
Romantic Homecoming

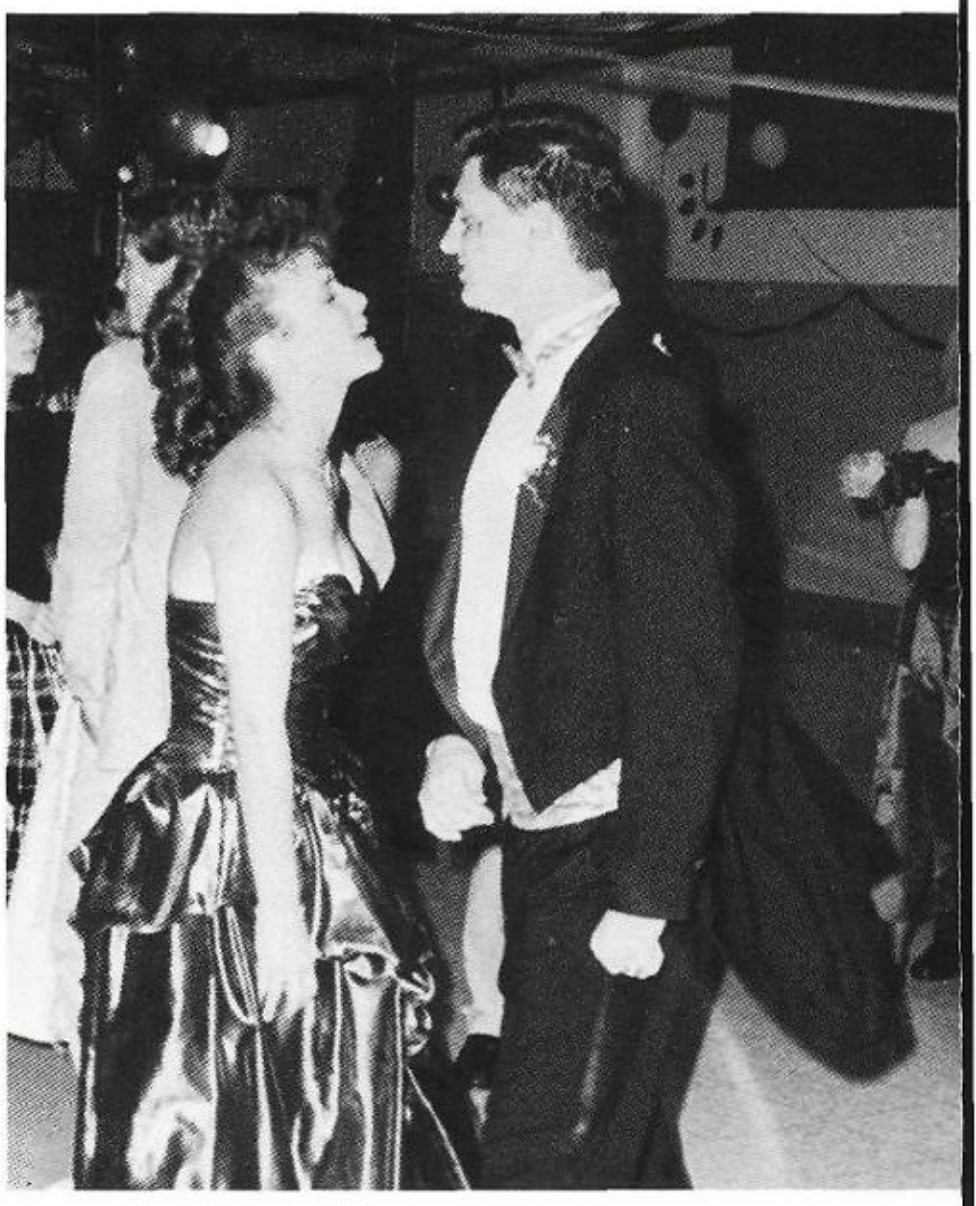
Cafeteria turns into ballroom

"You Look So Good in Love" was the theme song of this year's homecoming dance. The dance was sponsored by the student senate and was held Saturday, October 24 in the school cafeteria. "It was an enjoyable dance; yet it would have been more exciting if it had been in a hotel," said junior Holly Kimbrell. It was amazing how the cafeteria was transformed into a near-glamorous ballroom as a result of the classy decor. White and silver balloons floated across the room while the dim lights provided a romantic atmosphere.

A giant video screen displayed many popular videos. "I was amazed at how the dance floor stayed full considering many people made an appearance, had their picture taken, and then left," said senior Margo Wheeler. "I particularly liked the spirit towels that the dance-goers received. They added a nice touch," said senior Linda Lavar. Many students agree that this year's homecoming dance was a success and are looking forward to next year's dance.



Several students dance to a slow song.



A couple sing to each other to an upbeat tune.

Acting skills

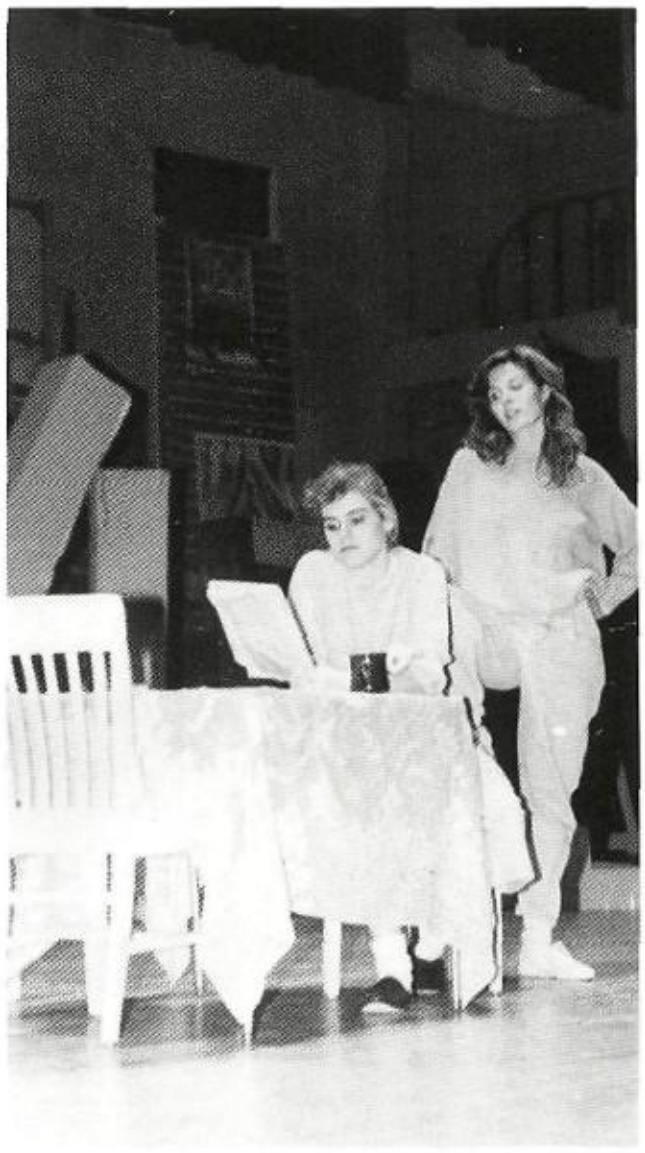
Serious play chosen for UIL

"The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" was chosen as the one-act play to be performed at J. J. Pearce for UIL competition on March 22 by the drama department.

"A lot of people go to the theater to be entertained, and this play is pretty devastating. It deals with the family and their life, and in general there's nothing to hope for in their life," said drama instructor Karen Gossett. She continued to say that the play relies strictly on the acting skills rather than a flamboyant set or costumes.

The play is about Tilly (Melanie Garrison) who is the hope of the play. Tilly's sister is Ruth (Jessica Morris) who is diagnosed as being almost insane. Their mother is Beatrice (Sherry Tackett) and she must keep old people in her home to support her family. Nanny (Heather Lidster) is one of the old persons Beatrice takes care of. Janice Dickery (Shannan Swanson) is Tilly's competition in the school science fair.

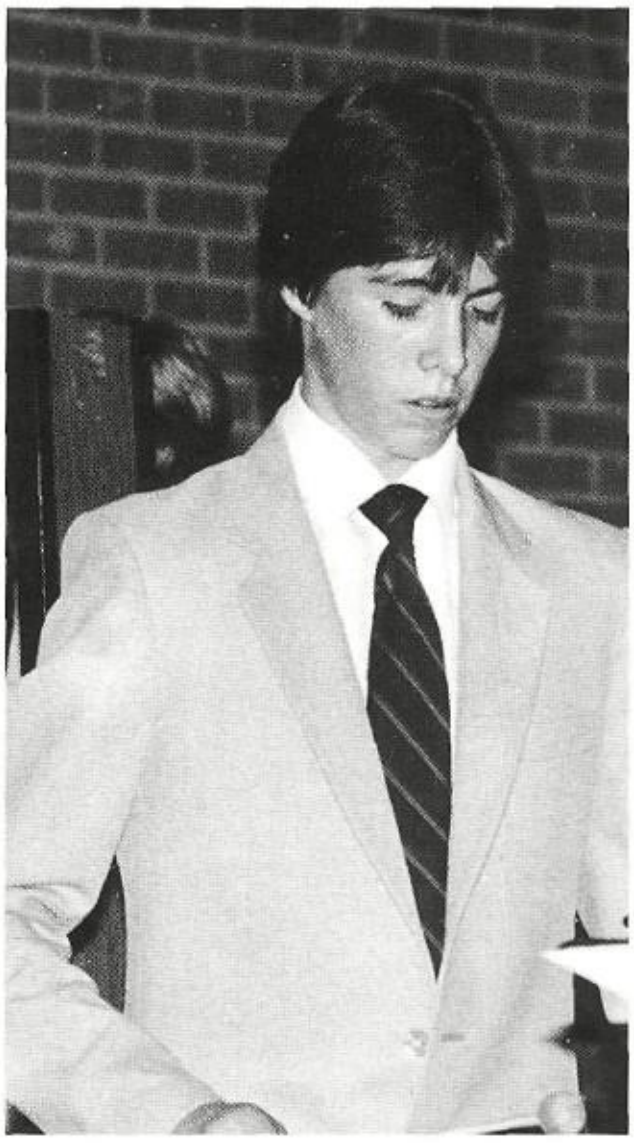
Sherry Tackett and Jessica Morris (Beatrice and Ruth) talk to each other at the kitchen table during one-act play rehearsals.



Sophomores Charles Self and Ronald Mathews work the stage lights during rehearsals of the one-act play.

Registration helpers were junior Tony Webb and sophomore Jason Riker.

Playing intently, sophomore George Furlong performs a piece for a band concert.



Hours of hard work

Dedication results in awards

The choir started off their year with the annual Lion Revue. Sophomore Christina Connell said of the show, "It went well. We had more variety than we've had in the past." In addition, they held a fall concert for Women's Select and Women's Concert Choir and Symbany performed at the Moose Lodge and the West End. They also hosted a Musical Review which included "Music Man," "Big River," and "West Side Story." The choir had a very eventful and productive year and hoped that next year would be even better.

Things also went well in the band community. After football season, the band prepared for a series of performances beginning with their Christmas concert. The band performed several pieces of music and several soloists performed Dec. 7. Certain members of the band were selected to audition for All Region Band Dec. 12 and were then asked to join the group. They also hosted a scholarship dinner Jan. 30 where different members of the band displayed their talent. In addition, they put many hours of hard work into the preparations for a contest which came in April. Freshman Allison Futch said, "Long hours of hard work and fun went into this year, and I hope that band is just as intriguing next year as it was this year."

Soaring popularity

U2 year's big attraction

The concert that generated the most enthusiasm of the year was, of course, that performed at the Tarrant County Convention Center in November by the Irish rock band U2 to support their album "The Joshua Tree." The group was known for its noncommercial stance, yet their success created for them the paradox of being opposed to what they had become. The English band Pink Floyd played three shows at Reunion Arena in November without former leader Roger Waters but with a glut of special effects to promote their album "A Momentary Lapse of Reason."

Also promoting a new album but minus a key member of the band, Fleetwood Mac less Lindsay Buckingham put on a solid show at Reunion in November. The legendary Tina Turner included Dallas on her U.S. tour. Tina, who came back from relative obscurity to win three Grammys with her "Private Dancer" album, was promoting "Break Every Rule," her most recent million-selling album.

In September some of the bad boys of rock, Motley Crue and White Snake, played Reunion for fans who like their music loud and tinged with just a bit of rebelliousness. White Snake originally was a Deep Purple spin-off with three of Purple's one-time members in the lineup. But with the re-creation of perhaps rock's original metal band, only vocalist David Coverdale remained. However, White Snake enjoyed unprecedented popularity as their songs and videos were heavily aired.

While the arena rockers carried on, the local scene was focused primarily on the Greenville and Deep Ellum areas with new bands featured at Club Dada, Club Clearview, the Prophet Bar and Grill, and Theatre Gallery.

In spite of the fact that there was really nothing universally significant for teenagers to protest, young people continued to flock to rock concerts, making Neil Young's prophetical verse, "Rock and roll will never die" seem true enough for the time being.

A curious mixture

TV's old/new generation

Television in 1988 was a curious mixture of past and present. "Star Trek: the New Generation" and "Sea Hunt" were representative of nostalgic remakes while "Tour of Duty" and "Frank's Place" were signs of the times. A spirit of experimentation prompted the combination of comedy and drama that resulted in something that Hollywood called "dramedy." Dramedy shows like "Slap Maxwell" (with Dabney Coleman in the title role) and "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd" (starring Blair Brown) were efforts by the networks to regain a share of the affluent audience they had lost to cable TV and video cassettes.

A show that attempted to regain the interest of the upscale young was ABC's "Thirtysomething," which dealt with the problems of being a Yuppy and starred former "Hill Street" actor Ken Olin. The show was an instant hit with those that it attempted to portray. "Hill Street's" creator, Steven Bochco, was the guiding light behind "Hooperman," which starred John Ritter of "Three's Company" in a police show that bore some similarities to Bochco's earlier creation.

"The Cosby Show" continued to hold onto first place in the ratings week in and week out and inspired the spinoff "A Different World" with Denise Huxtable (Lisa Bonet) away at college. Another standby, "Family Ties," starring Michael J. Fox, continued to be a popular sitcom.

Long-running shows with a police or detective orientation were "Cagney & Lacey," "Magnum, P.I.," "Hunter," and "Simon and Simon." "Cheers" was minus Shelley Long and plus Kirstie Alley, a change that did not aversely affect the show's ratings. Evening soaps like "Dallas" and "Knots Landing" continued on the tube but may have lost some of their Nielsen luster while "L.A. Law," one of the most talked-about shows on the air, dramatized the stratagems of the legal profession for a receptive audience.

One of the top-rated television shows this year was "The Cosby Show." The members of the Huxtable family were (top) Phylicia Rashad as Clair, Sabrina Le Beauf as Sondra, Malcolm-Jamal Warner as Theo, Tempsett Bledsoe as Vanessa, (bottom) Bill Cosby as Cliff, and Keshia Knight Pulliam as Rudy.

Cinematic adventure

Fans like action, drama

With adventure films perhaps the biggest consistent money-making genre for Hollywood, is Arnold Schwarzenegger the prototype movie star of the 80s and 90s? The onetime Mr. Universe and Mr. Olympia title holder was selected (along with Diane Keaton) by the National Association of Theater Owners as 1987's Star of the Year.

This appellation was due in part to the fact that while the former bodybuilder may not yet be an accomplished actor, his films make a lot of money. "Predator" grossed $107 million, and "The Running Man" made $10.5 million its first week. The two "Conan" movies made $180 million together, but in terms of acting "Raw Deal" was probably the point at which Arnold began to mature as an artist. So long as action films are blockbusters at the box office, Schwarzenegger will be in demand.

While Arnold couldn't seem to avoid big-buck bonanzas, funny man Robin Williams was hoping to break a string of less-than-successful films by doing a wartime comedy. Playing an Armed Forces Radio disk jockey in "Good Morning, Vietnam," Williams, with his knack for manic improvisations, seemed to have a hit at last with both the critics and the film-going public.

Another Vietnam veteran, director Oliver Stone, fresh from his Oscar-winning "Platoon" success, had another thought-provoking film out with "Wall Street," starring Michael Douglas, Daryl Hannah, and Charlie Sheen as people caught in the tentacles of greed, money, power, and status. Shaking his nice-guy image, Douglas was the scene stealer as Gordon Gekko, Wall Street rogue, who leads impressionable Bud (Sheen) astray.

Wheeling and dealing in another arena was the theme of "Broadcast News," which starred William Hurt, Holly Hunter, and Albert Brooks, in a drama that asked the question: Should a TV anchorperson be astute or just good-looking?

With action, comedy, and thoughtful drama all part of the movie scene, 1988 was a good year for film fans.

Overcoming adversity

Lions struggle valiantly despite injuries

The varsity football team expected to do better than what their record indicated at the end of the season, but the injury bug bit the Lions hard. It all started with the first game when starting quarterback Kit Barlow received a late hit after the whistle had blown. "It was very disappointing," said senior guard Mark Holmes. "When we lost Kit, we seemed lost." Backup quarterback Steve Feeney then came on the scene prepared to fight. In the Denison game Feeney led the Lions to three touchdowns.

However, the injuries continued, and the varsity then began to lose most of its starters. By mid-season the Lions had lost 14 starters, and sophomores were moved up to fill in for the injured Lions. "If we were looking for an excuse for this season, it would have to be inexperience," said head coach Charlie Lyles. "Some of the sophomores were moved up before they were ready."

Senior tackle Ken Finley said,"The highlight of the season would have to be playing the best team in the state. Plano was undefeated, and we played as hard as we could. I think the biggest disappointment would be losing to Smith, 23-3." The Lions had expected a better season. "When the season started, we were state bound," said senior Dion Sims. "We just beat ourselves."

Although the Lions ended the season without a win, they played with pride despite inexperience and numerous injuries to key personnel.

Keeping Spirits Up

Injuries Vex Junior Varsity

The junior varsity football team, with only 18 players for the first six weeks of the season, fought a long, hard battle. The team lost most of their players to either injuries or to the varsity team. Junior Mark Newton said, "This year turned out to be a surprise for everyone." After the second six weeks, the junior varsity team's number of players increased to 27. Still the junior varsity team was outnumbered almost two to one by most of the other district teams.

The biggest surprise of the season occurred when the team defeated the Berkner High Rams. Sophomore Wade Carroll said, "Even though we only won a game, we were really surprised to see that the team was Berkner." With a 1-9 season, the junior varsity team all gained the experience needed to try out for the varsity team next year.

"The most important thing that made me a better player was the way the coaches kept our hopes and spirits up," said sophomore Duff Ray. The coaches are an important part of any team, and our junior varsity coaches are some of the best around.

A new ingredient

Girls stride to region

A new ingredient was added to the girls' cross country team this year: Coach Cathy Webb. Coach Webb led the girls to the regional meet where they placed ninth. The girls earned the ride to regionals by taking second place in the district meet. The girls set goals for both the team and themselves and then met their goals. Varsity runner Michelle Miller seemed to think the reason for the team's winning season was the new coaching. Coach Webb helped the girls set and achieve their goals, adjust attitudes, push a little harder and build a strong team. Miller thought the highlight of the season was "when the team gave coach a trophy for her birthday."

The boys' cross-country team, also competing in a tough district, did not fare as well as the girls. The boys' team was adversely affected by the strict grade requirements of House Bill 72 and they were in a hard, yet well-balanced, district. The boys finished eighth place in the district meet. However, there were some individual standouts. Sophomore Steve Jones ran on the varsity team his first year, and the transfer of Doug and Brian Haring from California came as a helpful surprise to the team. Senior Barrett Brown said, "We had a decent team, but the competition in the district was tougher than we expected."

On the winning track

Spikers play in regional meet

The varsity volleyball team had a successful year, making the trip to Huntsville, Texas, to play in the regional tournament for the second consecutive year. "We didn't win district, but we did the next best thing. We took second place," said Coach Kari Hollingsworth. "I was a little disappointed in our inconsistency and our play in regionals but was pleased with the girls' determination and dedication. They worked very hard all season long."

With a 10-4 record in district and an overall record of 23-10, it is easy to see that the team did something right. Coach Hollingsworth commented, "The team has improved a lot in the past year. Our defense worked well, our net play was good, and we worked as a team. Another nice thing was that we could put the ball anywhere if we got in trouble. Everyone knew how to put the ball over."

A disappointment of the season was losing to Newman Smith's Trojans each time the teams met, but Coach Hollingsworth said, "We have small people, and to get as far as we have is a great accomplishment. Being one of the top 16 teams of 256 in the state is something to be proud of."

Impressive Play

Strategy Makes Winning Possible

The freshman A volleyball team was undefeated in district play with an overall record of 10-1. Coach Carol Bushnell commented that the high point of the season occurred when both the A and B teams beat the Smith High Trojans each time they played. "The girls were very excited, and they played well," said Coach Bushnell. During the season Coach Bushnell stressed the basics of the game when working with the B team and taught the A team offensive strategies and teamwork. The veteran coach said, "The season was excellent, and everyone improved. I'm very proud of them."

The sophomore team also did well in district competition in its second year of existence. "We developed the sophomore team to give the girls a chance to play and to learn more about intensity and the basics of volleyball," said Coach Kari Hollingsworth. Coach Hollingsworth also commented, "We played very well this year although we took some mental vacations at the wrong times and lost some tough matches. Overall, I am impressed with the way the ladies worked and loved to play."

"The junior varsity played very hard this season and did well although we lost two starters in mid-season. One girl moved away, and Cathy Young was moved up to varsity," said Coach Fran Richardson. The biggest disappointment of the season was losing to Newman Smith High. "I am happy with the way we played in tournaments this year as we won second place in the Richardson JV Invitational and won consolation in the Plano Tournament." The junior varsity's total record was 17-13, and their district record was 6-8.

Courting success

Emphasis placed on control

The varsity tennis team had a good year under the guidance of Coach Kerry Smith. Ms. Smith,in her second year here, showed confidence in her team. Although the district was quite competitive, the team improved over last year by doubling its wins. At the beginning of the year, the team received two new players from South Africa: Greg and Anthony Ivins.

Coach Smith commented that the tennis courts here needed improvement, so all home matches were played at Brookhaven. The no-pass, no play provisions of House Bill 72 also hurt the team with the loss of two players. Coach Smith said that she agreed with the no-pass, no play rule even though it presented a problem. For this reason the team stressed the importance of keeping up their grades.

The team put more emphasis on practice by working on speed, control, and consistency. Coach Smith said that the team did better than she anticipated and that she was looking forward to the spring season when all her players would return.

Against the clock

Swimmers seek improved times

Beginning the year with a new coach, Ms. Jenifer Thomas, the swimmers looked forward to an eventful year. The season began with many changes, one of which was the switch from evening practices to early morning workouts at Loos Natatorium. "The change meant we had to prepare to swim and to get ready for school much earlier," said senior Hilda Porrata. "It was hard to get used to at first, but it was worth it," said junior Kimberly Dean.

The program also utilized some new ways to raise money, such as a Swim-a-thon, a Christmas tree sale (with much assistance from the Swim Booster Club), and a tree raffle. The money the team raised aided them in the purchase of equipment.

The returning swimmers were in good shape and worked to improve their times from the previous year. The team was hampered in meets to some extent by their small squad. To win a swim meet, a team needs quantity and quality. For example, the Richardson and Duncanville teams had approximately 100 swimmers each, which was a big advantage for them at the regional meet.

"We are planning a big recruitment of freshmen for next year," said girls' captain Becky Bernardini. The girls' team lacked a much-needed fourth swimmer for a relay team the second semester; however, the boys' team improved dramatically. "They have dropped seven seconds from their relay time," said boys' captain Greg Seymour. "The possibility of an indoor pool for the use of Turner and Smith swimmers would help to increase the number of swimmers for both teams," said senior Ella Talavera.

Beating the Bisons

New coach guides team

Working with a new coach, Mr. Larry Spruiell, and playing in one of the most competitive districts in the state, the varsity basketball team faced a challenging season. The team participated in several tournaments and won games at those contests. The high point came when the squad defeated the powerful Sunset Bisons, a win that senior Kevin Sullivan said was definitely the highlight of his year. However, the biggest disappointment, said Sullivan, was losing to the Smith Trojans later in the year.

Coach Spruiell was not happy with his squad's 0-14 district record, but he said that the first year for a new coach is usually the toughest. The coach introduced some new conditioning techniques, such as weight training and running, to improve the players' endurance. "The new training techniques are designed to help the team perform better in many ways," said Coach Spruiell.

Senior Daren Queen said, "The overall competition was tough this season, but the players and the coaches tried too hard with a new coach, and some of our players were lost to injuries and House Bill 72." Coach Spruiell will work the team harder and try to make it to district next year. "Going to district would be the highlight of anybody's season," he said.

Positive attitudes

Working toward the future

With a long-term goal of reaching the playoffs with a more experienced squad next year, the junior varsity basketball team had a solid season.

"This has been the best junior varsity team here in a long time," said sophomore player Matt Blase. One reason the team did so well was the fact that they worked together as a unit. "I thought we would go to district this year because we worked as a team," said Blase. Junior Matt Miller said, "Coach (Larry) Spruiell taught us to have a positive attitude on the court and not to get down on our teammates."

Miller said that point guard George Furlong was the player who helped the team the most with his consistent play in each game. Furlong's goal was eventually to move up to the varsity.

The team had a 12-18 season record and a 2-16 record in district. The highlight of the season for Miller was a victory over the Newman Smith Trojans.

Tough shooting

Working hard at hoops

The girls' varsity basketball team under the guidance of second-year head coach Vince Cowdrey tried hard to come away with a district championship. Although they played competitively in a tough district, the girls fell short in their attempt. Coach Cowdrey said that the girls worked hard, but in the 12-5A District it was difficult to make it to the playoffs.

The girls were led by Michaele Drake and Jeanan Walvoord. Michaele also made the Good Grades team, a tribute to her academic prowess. Senior Stephanie Drake was disappointed with the outcome of the season, a 6-8 district record. "I just thought we would do better than what we did; I was very upset."

The most disappointing game, the girls said, was the loss to the Smith High Trojans, a game the girls believed they should have won. Senior Lynn Laney explained, "We mainly beat ourselves."

Coach Cowdrey said that he is looking forward to next year because the upcoming juniors and seniors should help take the team to the top.

Girls' basketball

They love the game

The girls' junior varsity basketball team played under the guidance of Coach Fran Richardson, who said, "I am very proud to have coached these girls because they all have that desire to play the game of basketball."

"Not only do they love the game," she continued, "but most of them are all-A students." Coach Richardson was confident that these girls would help next year's varsity team.

Freshman girls' coach Kari Hollingsworth said, "It was like watching a Keystone Kops movie at the first of the year. It was like, 'What's a basketball?' " Although the girls were inexperienced at the beginning of the season, Coach Hollingsworth said that this squad would be the team of the future.

Exceptional speed

Scoring goals with style

"Although there was not as much individual talent, overall the team was better due to their extensive practicing and teamwork," said Coach Doug Bertrand. The varsity team faced a tough beginning since there were only two starting seniors that returned. Junior James Clark said, "Even with the difficult task of getting to know everyone and their style of play, we were still able to field a potentially winning team." The Lions faced injuries and an ineligibility crisis.

The varsity team successfully played in each of the games at the Carrollton-Farmers Branch tournament, in which they placed fourth. The varsity team displayed exceptional speed this year which increased their possibilities for goals; yet, due to the players' unawareness of their position they received many offside penalties. Several players had an exceptional season. Seniors Eric Clark, Jamie Yoe, and Robert Fey all performed well. Todd Holleman and Val Reyes also had outstanding seasons. Junior Paul Schmidt said, "I anticipate a better record next year since we are getting more organized and practicing more and more."

New methods

Girls' soccer greatly improved

The girls' soccer team was greatly improved over the previous year. Junior Holly Kimbrell explained, "We have a lot more talent and better skills than last year." The team tried L.D. Bell High School, 1-1, which at the time was ranked in the top 10 in region.

Coach Carol Bushnell implemented new training methods for the team. "I concentrated on a harder workout for the girls this year," said Coach Bushnell.

The team had several key players on both the offense and the defense. Freshman Marcy Howe was mentioned by one of her teammates as an all-around good player. Juniors Cindy Saiter, Ricki Miller, and Tammy Hook were also cited as key offensive players. On defense sophomores Angela Hansen, Lori Ward, and freshman goalie Jessica Pruitt were also singled out.

Maintaining a tradition

Wrestlers win regional title

Maintaining their winning tradition, the wrestlers managed to end their season with a 19-4-1 record. They also managed to capture the regional title. Of the six wrestlers who went to state, five of them placed no lower than third. "We weren't supposed to win regionals; Newman Smith was supposed to walk away with it," said Coach John Johnson.

"Both Doug Haring and Bo Underwood worked really hard all season long, and they both finished second with scores of 2-1 (at state). It's really tough when they've worked so hard during the year to come up just ever-so-little short."

Haring said his goal was "to try hard and to always do my best."

Coach Johnson said, "All the wrestlers performed outstandingly. I could take 30 minutes for each wrestler and tell you how well each one did." However, the veteran coach said he was surprised by the performance of his underclassmen.

Underwood said the highlight of his season was "winning the Metroplex Classic and having my bracket signed and presented by Ed Banach."

The goal of the wrestling team was to take a trophy at every tournament they attended, and they did that except for the Lewisville tournament. Senior Matt Hannum said, "We expect to win; we're a winning team."

The best one yet for golf

The golf team made its presence felt in many area tournaments. "This season has been the best one yet," said freshman Ryan Moss. "With all the veterans from last year and the new players, the golf team is awesome." The team had no problems and hoped to do well in the district meet.

"Our returning player that has contributed the most this year and in years past is Scott DeSerrano," said sophomore Andy Iverson. DeSerrano has been with the team since he was a freshman and has been one of the best golfers that has even come through the program. Scott has gotten a scholarship to Oklahoma State University, which has one of the best programs in the country. Sophomore Andy Iversen said, "Scott can just about win the tournaments by himself."

Coach Harry Bullard retired at the end of this year after having also served as an assistant principal and as a basketball coach. Deserrano said that the veteran teacher had been more than a coach; he had been a friend.

Field event strength

Runners face Richardson schools

Exhibiting strength in the field events, the boys' track team began the season facing strong competition from the Richardson schools — primarily Richardson High and Berkner High. Because of the overall vitality of the district, teams that fared well usually went on to regional and state meets. With many new runners on the team, Coach Bill Nitcholas was confident that these younger runners would gain valuable experience in their events.

The biggest disappointment of the season was losing several key runners because of poor grades before the district meet, making them ineligible to compete. Coach Nitcholas predicted that pole-vaulter Jason Bryan would be one of the leading vaulters in the state. Other areas of strength were the discus with Doug Livingston and Jeff Clark performing in that skill event and the shot-put with Chad Thompson and Mark Holmes exhibiting skill throwing the iron ball.

Another premier performer for the Lions was middle-distance runner Barrett Brown, senior. Coach Nitcholas said that Brown was a strong 800-meter runner who really worked hard at the sport.

Pleasant surprises

Girls' track makes things happen

This year was Ms. Cathy Webb's first to coach high-school track. Formerly a coach at Vivian Field Junior High School, she said she was somewhat uncertain as to what methods to use here but used her instincts to set the standards.

Overall, she said the season was good. "I think the kids are really up, and they're excited because they've seen some things happen. The kids went up against Dallas schools and did very well, and the freshmen started out strong."

She also said that junior Kate Shine and freshman Ann Dingman were pleasant surprises. "I didn't know that they were as far along as they had demonstrated." Some individuals she expected to do well this season were Terese Burgess and Ginger Gilchrist in sprints, Audra Davis and Lynn Laney in hurdles, and Jennifer May in various running events.

As for the district contest, Coach Webb said that there weren't any powerhouses that would dominate. The varsity team looked very good "on paper. It's kind of scary." The freshmen, she said, were strong, but there were a "couple of weak links" that needed to be ironed out.

Next year she expects that the team will be just as strong because only three runners will be lost due to graduation.

Baseball fields awesome offense

"Our district is the toughest in the state, so it is going to be tough to make it," said senior Jeff Raines. The baseball team had a good chance to win district, as well as go to state. "In the final it's going to be among five teams: Turner, Newman Smith, Plano and Plano East, and the team ranked No. 1 by the Dallas Times Herald, Lake Highlands," said senior Britt Bonneau. Senior Kevin Fought said, "I think Smith is going to be really tough to beat because they are a strong team, especially with Chris Gay on the mound."

The baseball team prepared themselves for the tough season ahead. "Coach Clay has made us run a lot more this year. Other than that it has been the same training," said Bonneau. "I think we have a very good chance at district if we can cut down on our defensive errors and come through with pitching. If we can control that, then we can go a long way because of our awesome offense," Fought said. "I think that the most promising player would be Charlie Purvis, catcher. He has an outstanding arm as well as an outstanding batting average," said Fought. "Charlie is one of a kind as far as catching, and his arm is just outstanding," said Raines.

Creative problem solving

Academic teams face challenges

Academic Decathlon advisers Debra Moore and Larrie Edge organized students to compete academically. The competition consisted of a multiple choice test covering six topics, a speech, an essay, an interview of each contestant by judges, and a team super quiz. Participants had to be juniors or seniors and had to have an A, B, or C grade average. Participants could win medals, scholarships, and letter jackets.

In preparation, contestants met with Ms. Edge and Ms. Moore during their lunch time. During the week they were given practice tests and other material to study. The group also went to a convention titled Judging the Judges. Consultants on speech making and teachers on various subjects gave a helping hand to the team.

Although each member had to have a general knowledge of all subjects for the super quiz, senior Lark Shirley said, "It's not much of a chore because we study what topics we're interested in."

The A team members were Bun Nary Penh, Jae Ho Chang, and Mai Nguyen. Lark Shirley, Daniel Winton, and Rebecca Thompson made the B team. Making the C team were Adam Zayas and Yekta Moghaddas.

Also involved in inter-school competition was the Olympics of the Mind Team. "It's a lot of work, more than anyone realized. It's enjoyable work when someone has ideas, but apathy and a lack of time have caused a lot of frustration," said Olympics of the Mind adviser Mike Reichle. The OM teams are working on various problems trying to be creative while spending the least amount of money possible. The teams learned cooperation and that there were many correct answers to one problem.

Fixing troubles

They take out the dents

Auto Mechanics students worked on automobiles brought to them for repair by community and faculty members. With their experienced instructor, Mr. Joe Bourland, and sophisticated equipment, the students were successful in making even complex repairs.

General Mechanics students, under the supervision of veteran instructor Melvin Blankenship, took care of routine maintenance, like oil changes and lubrication. These students also undertook minor mechanical repairs to both faculty and community-owned cars. The group competed in a speed/skills competition in the spring and received some new tools.

The Auto Body group, directed by Mr. Tracy Gandee, received new jackets this year. The back of the jackets displayed the saying: "We take the dents out of accidents." "We have been trying really hard to live up to that motto," said junior Brent Mellon. Senior automotive student Dwane Hahn said that some of the cars brought in for repair had difficult problems, but the students were able to repair them satisfactorily.

All of these groups provided students with an excellent opportunity to learn a valuable skill and to work with students with similar interests while earning credits toward graduation.

Better and better

Hard work pays off for band

"I think each year gets better and better," said band director Jim Moen. The band started its spectacular year early with summer rehearsals in August. Having many early morning and after-school practices during marching season paid off when the band received a First Division Rating and placed First Alternate to region at the UIL competition in Duncanville. They also placed fifth in district at the UT/Arlington marching competition. The Flag Corps did just as well when they received a First Division Rating at pre-UIL and Sweepstakes at the SMU camp. Feature twirler Alisa Pearson also received a First Division Rating on her performance at UIL competition.

The band participated in many other activities, such as the Carrollton Country Fair Parade and several concerts. Many students competed at the UIL Solo and Ensemble contest. Those selected for All Region Jazz band were Samona Wilcox, Sharon Coursey, Alex Navarrette, Jason Hamby, and Chris Crockett. The band members selected for All Region Orchestra were Maureen Woodwell, Monica Benitz, Chuck McBrayer, Alex Navarrette, and Tony Romaine. Pep Squad Expresses Enthusiasm

"This year's Pep Squad was a good group overall," said adviser Julie Karnes. The group participated in several activities during the year. The girls expressed their enthusiasm by rooting for the teams at the home varsity football and basketball games.

During the year the Pep Squad learned the fundamentals of cheerleading and drill team, such as high kicks, dances, and jumps, which prepared them for their mock tryouts at the end of the year. A selected group of the Pep Squad performed at the RLT vs. Smith High pep rally, and for the first time they performed at the Lionette and Cheerleader Show.

The girls were found at all the pep rallies, spirit night, and marching in the Carrollton Country Fair Parade. Freshman Jacquie Curtin remembered Pep Squad "as a learning experience that will prepare me for the future."

Spirit winner

Cheerleaders go to nationals

"I could not have asked for a better group of girls," said cheerleader sponsor Julie Chastain. "The girls were wonderful. They are so responsible and dedicated to school spirit and to the teams they cheer for." At the SMU summer camp the varsity squad received all blue ribbons, a spirit stick, and first runner-up in The Award of Excellence Competition. Both junior varsity and freshman squads received blue ribbons and spirit sticks. Mascots Jodi Callahan and Misty Mixon were selected as All American Mascots, and varsity cheerleaders Dana Ashby and Shannan Swanson were nominated as All American Cheerleaders.

In other events the varsity squad won a $500 award for second place in a Foleys' competition, and they cheered at the Dallas Cowboys Oldtimers' game. The junior-varsity squad received Sweepstakes and first place at a Six Flags' competition, making them eligible to perform at the pregame show of a Texas Rangers' game. The girls were successful in their goal to compete in national competition when the varsity squad was chosen as one of 38 teams and the junior varsity was chosen one of 43 groups in the United States to compete for a national title in December. The squads were led by head varsity cheerleader Adelina Macias, junior varsity head Paige McClendon, and freshman head Kathy Fey and co-head Alicia Mixon. Senior Becky Morton said, "This year has been the best for us, and I would not have done it any differently."

Talent and dedication

Lionettes win many awards

"The 1987-1988 Lionettes were the most individually talented and the most dedicated group of girls that have been on the drill team in the four years that I have been at Turner," said Lionette sponsor Julie Karnes. The officers (captain Carrie Curtin, senior lieutenants Monica Todd, Mary Mitchell, Melissa Patterson, and junior lieutenant Shelley Stone) started off the year by winning a Division I Sweepstakes rating and Most Admired Team of the Day at the SMU summer camp. The other Lionettes also did well at summer camp. The team brought home a Super Sweepstakes Trophy, Most Admired Team of the Day, and Most Admired Team of the Week. Eight girls were nominated for Who's Who/All American Drill Team. Of the eight nominated four were selected as All Americans, three were selected as Who's Who, and one was selected to the Honor Roll.

Football season has always been the busiest time of year for the Lionettes, and this year was no different. In addition to the football games, the Lionettes also performed at the pep rallies and at Spirit Night and participated in the annual Carrollton Country Fair Parade with Lionettes Suzanne Bowman (princess) and Stefani Maynard (queen) riding on the Miss Carrollton Country Fair Float. Even though the Lionettes had a busy football season, their performances were excellent and definitely crowd pleasing.

Choir invited to Rome

The choral department had an active year as the fall semester began busily with the preparation of the well-attended Lion Revue, which kicked off the Homecoming festivities. During the fall the choir also participated in a joint concert with the choir from Thomas Jefferson High School. The choir sponsored fund-raisers, such as selling memberships to a record and tape club and taking part in a spring cleanup campaign.

With the money they raised, the group entered the UIL contest in April and took a weekend trip to Corpus Christi, Texas, in May. Because of the excellent ratings received at these events, the choir was invited to perform in Rome, Italy, and at Carnegie Hall in New York City. Along with various competitions the spring semester included a musical revue in February followed by a spring concert. Senior Brandi Futch said that the choir was well organized and laden with individual talent. "I'll miss it when I graduate."

Improved Performance

Orchestra Travels to Houston

The orchestra enjoyed an active and productive year. Student enrollment was larger than ever before, which improved the orchestra's performance, said director Paul Gilchrist.

The orchestra took on a number of fund-raising projects, including a car wash, a candy sale, and a cookie booth at the Carrollton Country Fair. The profits were used for senior scholarships and for awards for individual achievement. Several students auditioned for the All Region and All State Orchestras, but the entire group participated in the UIL contest in April. A joint concert for all of the string players in the school district was sponsored by the orchestra.

The highlights of the year included taking a trip to Houston for the Astroworld Festival and entering a marching contest for the first time conducted by the Carrollton Country Fair and winning third place. Junior Alisa Gossage reflected the orchestra's attitude by saying, "The students were positive and more interested this year than in the past."

Cafeteria expands menu

The cafeteria expanded its menu to whet students' taste buds. Burritos, chili pie, and chicken-fried steak were some of the victuals on the menu. In the past students had to pay extra for these items, but they were added as part of the lunch special. Students could obtain cold sandwiches in the salad bar. Ms. Virgie Davis said that they were going to prepare most of the food closer to the lunch periods so that it would be hot. "Along with better lunches, the cafeteria has also had many compliments on it sanitation," said cafeteria worker Moggie Breeding.

The custodians had a busy summer that continued after school started because of the addition to the building of the new science wing. They had a very short time to get the room cleaned before the beginning of the term. After school began, the custodians had eight hours a day to clean the building. "There is a lot more cleaning here than most people think," said head night supervisor Purvis Guillory. He also said that the carpet was a big advantage and helped make cleaning a lot easier. Mr. Guillory said that the custodial staff was very proud of the school and that they took lot of pride in the way it looked.

Getting Down to Business

Students Work Toward Vocations

The cosmetology classes attended many style shows including the Cameo Guild and the Old Texas Beauty show. They participated in the district and state contests Feb. 19-20 and the state VICA contests. In these contests the students were allowed to enter these categories: display, demonstration, or leadership ability. In addition to three hours of classroom work, the students spent the other 11 hours experiencing hands-on training. The cosmetology officers were president Karla Kopsas, vice president Christina Ramirez, secretary Kim Hall, treasurer Kellie Henderson, reporter Jennifer Owens, parliamentarian Patty Salhany, sergeant-at-arms Gabrielle Hubacka, and chaplain Jennifer Shaffer.

The DECA classes not only sold carnations on Fridays during football season for a fund-raiser, but they also combined with the HECE classes to give Christmas gifts to the needy. The class also took education trips to sites like the Infomart and other businesses. Senior Tracy Sowers said, "The trips were fun, but our teacher is the one who organized and got us prepared to go into the business world." The DECA program's primary purpose is to help prepare students for work in the business world. "The teacher, Nita Wyatt, is a good instructor. She helps us troubleshoot problems that appear at work or will appear," said senior Kellie McManus. "It is a great class, and I am glad that I had the opportunity to be a part of it."

Job Market Preparation

Practical Skills Stressed

"Future Farmers of America was stronger internally this year, and the teamwork was better than ever," said adviser Dale Gardner. The vocational agriculture students proved their ability to work together by performing successfully at several functions. With the guidance of both Mr. Gardner and co-adviser Dick Kyser, they entered district and area leadership contests and attended several livestock shows, including the Texas State Fair and the Fort Worth Stock Show. The group raised funds for various projects with the annual Thanksgiving and Christmas sales by selling turkey, ham, sausage, and fruit. The FFA president was David Rush, and the vice president was Chuck Todd.

Two other vocational classes, machine shop and building trades, enjoyed a year-long learning experience. The machine shop students attended a skills competition in the spring to display their abilities. The building trades students began the year learning the basics of carpentry. The group then left the campus to build a house on school-owned property. Instructor Doug Palmer said, "Building Trades prepares the students for the job market because maturity and safety come first."

Expanding horizons

Parties have cultural theme

The French Club started off the year by having its annual cheese tasting party at Suzanne Bowman's house. The club had a Christmas party at Elizabeth O'Rielly's house. The French club also won second place in the hall-decorating contest. "We worked really hard on making our hall look great, and it paid off," said senior Kellie Reichert. The French club also attended a French competition in Sherman in the fall.

The Spanish Club was also busy this year. They had regular meetings and a Christmas party at Chris George's house. They attended a competition also. "Spanish Club has been a cultural experience," said junior Traci Johnson.

The Latin Club had a star-gazing meeting this year. This year they decided to do something new. Instead of having a president and a vice-president, they had an actual Greek council.

Making Decisions

Committees Show Involvement

The Senior Executive Committee's many responsibilities involved such activities as sponsoring sock hops and judging the Homecoming hall decorating contest. The rest of the year the emphasis was placed on preparations for the Senior Luncheon and graduation. In addition, the group chose the senior sweatshirts and the designs for the senior rings and graduation announcements. Adviser Nina Mosher said that she was pleased with the number of seniors who were willing to become involved. President Jennifer Frierott said, "The Class of 1988 has definitely shown the most enthusiasm of all the classes this year." Other Senior Executive Committee officers were vice president Doug Bradford, secretary Melanie Garrison, and treasurer Sherry Tackett.

The Junior Executive Committee also had a busy year. They spent the majority of their year deciding on a location and decorations for the Junior/Senior Prom. Their biggest fund-raising project was selling mums for Homecoming. The officers were president Kim Bartlett, vice president Cindy Saiter, secretary Anita Dalton, and treasurer Tammy Reno.

The Sophomore Executive officers were president Lauren Fore, vice president Melinda Reid, and secretary/treasurer Melinda Goodell. The Freshman Executive officers were president Kathy Fey, vice president Alicia Mixon, secretary Shannon Wilson, and treasurer Amy Thompson.

Mac attack

Computers aid staffs in production

Shouts of joy spread through the journalism room as the new Apple Macintosh computers and LaserWriter Plus printer were set up for the Lion's Tale and Roar staffs. The computers were first used to produce the second issue of the Lion's Tale.

The Lion's Tale staff was small in numbers, and the computers made the task of producing the newspaper easier once staffers learned how to operate the new system. "It's a learning experience because the new computers were hard to adjust to. Hopefully the people of this year's staff will be on the staff next year," said associate editor MaryAnn McKibben. Adviser Thomas Toulmin said, "They've adjusted to the new system well, but I would like to see the staff publish a larger paper. We have good people on the staff but there's not enough of them."

Mr. Toulmin said that overall he was pleased with the efforts of the Roar staff. "Last year's staff was hard to beat, but this year's staff has worked really hard," said Mr. Toulmin. Even though there was a lot of frustration in meeting deadlines, Roar staffer Brandi Futch said, "It was fun. I've never had a class or experience like this. It's almost like a business with meeting deadlines; you have your own responsibilities and creativity."

Dramatic talent

Thriving on competition

The speech department, under the direction of Ms. Sheryl Stutzman, attended many tournaments, including one in Sherman at which they took home the first-place trophy. Other tournaments attended were at Plano East, Newman Smith, Vines, and Dallas Baptist University. At the Plano East tournament, RLT won one of three Sweepstakes trophies awarded. The competitors also attended the annual Churchill High School Speech Tournament in San Antonio at which they also did well.

Senior Shannan Swanson said, "This year's tournament that we hosted at Turner was one of the best ones we have had since I have been here because Turner is finally being noticed."

Productions staged by the drama department, which was guided by Ms. Karen Gossett, included "The Effects of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds," their UIL one-act play entry in the spring. Drama veteran Melanie Garrison, senior, described students in the drama program as "hard-working." "I'd say we're one of the best around." Melanie mentioned that the drama program needed more students to become involved in the department so that the group could expand their production efforts. "We work on quality," said Melanie.

Project involvement

FHA continues success

The Future Homemakers of America, the largest club on campus, had an enjoyable year. The year started off with the annual picnic. Due to rainy weather, the picnic was moved from its traditional Thomas Park location to the school cafeteria, but still managed to draw the biggest crowd ever. Since FHA did not sponsor a trip to the State Fair, a spring picnic was held in May. Other activities the group participated in included the Carrollton Christmas Parade, a fashion show, and the FHA State Convention, which involved many of the club's members. Fund raisers in the last few years have been so successful that a moneymaking project was not needed this year. FHA adviser Mary Brown explained the purpose of the organization as being public relations and for letting the public know what the Home Economics classes at RLT are doing. She summed up the benefits of the club by saying, "As an FHA member and/or officer, students can develop leadership qualities and at the same time socialize and have a great time."

Seniors Shelley Johnson and Matt Hannum enjoy wedded bliss at the mock wedding in November.

Promoting interest

Classes learn office skills

The Office Education Association participated in many fund-raising activities last year to raise money for their annual employer/employee banquet. Some of the activities included selling candy, calendars, and Christmas gifts through a catalog. They held monthly meetings at which they discussed details for their banquet and planned for their Christmas party that was held at the Magic Time Machine. OEA adviser LaDean Black said, "Our goal was to promote more interest in office occupations." Officers were president Stacy Harpold, vice-president Shelley Smith, secretary Michelle Starnes, treasurer Ramona Catlett, parliamentarian Shawna Heermans, and historian Vicki Truebenbach.

The Vocational Office Career Club held monthly meetings that were led by adviser Sharon Stiles. At these meetings they discussed details for their banquet in April and their end-of-the-year picnic in May. Their goal for the year was to promote awareness of the business-oriented career classes. The VOCT classes had a busy year beginning with the Thanksgiving basket the second-year students put together for a needy family at Thanksgiving. They attended the district contest in February, the state contest in May, and held an employer/employee appreciation banquet at the end of the year. To raise money for the banquet, the classes sold candy.

Scientific altruists

Groups help others

The Science Club began their first year with a spate of activities that included a canned food drive, the science wing dedication, and the time capsule sponsorship. To raise money for pizza parties, field trips, guest speakers, and other activities, club members sold blow pops.

President Jenny Harrison said the goals of the club were to enlarge the group, to have fun with science, and to make science interesting for everyone.

The Mu Alpha Theta math club was "outstanding in many areas, not just one field," said adviser Janie McPherson. The group of 53 students helped others with their math and raised enough money to pay for all contest fees. Ms. McPherson said that the club would sponsor students who wanted to participate in math contests as long as they were willing to work and to study. One such person was Phillip Deen, who won third place in a Richardson/Pearce math contest.

Organized service

Groups coordinate benefits

"National Honor Society is primarily an organization to serve others," said adviser David Spindle. The members participated in several projects throughout the year. At Thanksgiving the group collected canned food for the needy, and at Christmas members bought toys for needy children. As a fund-raiser the group sponsored two car washes and sold Turnergrams (poems on cards) on Valentine's Day. The administration held an honors breakfast for the members Feb. 27 to recognize their academic excellence. The group also sponsored a blood drive and sold carnations. Overall the organization had a successful year.

"The Student Senate, composed of elected representatives from each class level, is an organization designed to coordinate activities for the benefit of the students," said adviser Charlene Madrigal. The group began the year by preparing for the Homecoming Dance, which occurred Oct. 24. The group also sponsored a scavenger hunt for canned food. Other projects included Spirit Night, the Sweetheart Dance, the Honors Presentation, the Honor Roll Breakfast, and the MORP dance in the spring. The group also kept the student body up-to-date with all school activities by changing the announcement board and the marquee weekly. The officers were president Robin Stacy, vice-president Greer Scarbrough, treasurer Lawrence Chen, secretary Julie Lewis, historian Christina Connell, parliamentarian Troy Madrigal, and reporter Clint Swanson.

WE ARE SO PROUD OF YOU BOTH!!

You have been two of the greatest joys of our lives. There are not enough words to describe all the love, happiness, and pride we feel for you both. You are EVERYTHING ANY PARENT COULD HOPE FOR IN DAUGHTERS. You have excelled in everything you have undertaken, and you have always made us proud. We wouldn't change a thing — You have certainly been double the fun, double the pleasure! Now the HARD PART comes — LETTING GO. THANKS FOR 18 WONDERFUL YEARS.

We love you both,

Now, armed with our love,
and with the knowledge of who you are and where you have been, GO . . . REACH
FOR THE STARS !

GJ & GT

Only faith can guarantee the blessings that we hope for, or prove the existence of the realities that at present remain unseen. 11 Hebrews 1, 2.

Ella,

There are not enough words to describe all the love, joy, and pride we feel for you. You are everything any parent could wish for in a daughter and sister.

We Love You Very Much,
Mom and Paul

"Who's peeking out from under a stairway
calling a name that's lighter than air
Who's bending down to give me a rainbow

At age one your sweetness and innocence thrilled your Dad and me.....

.....At age four your "impishness" was there for all to see

At age sixteen you shouted
Turner on to VICTORY?????.....

.....And now at eighteen you're a lovely graduate of RLT!

WHAT A FOX . . . . . .WHAT A DAUGHTER . . . . . .WHAT A BLESSING! !

Puddin,

It just seems like yesterday you were saying, "Hold my hand." Now you are a beautiful young woman with compassion and love for others. You have always been the light of our lives. I'm not saying it's been easy, but it has been fun! Stay as you are, and you'll make it in life. We are very proud of you. You made it, babe !

Love,

Pal—Believe most of all in yourself, to become all you expect in life. "Own the barn and all that dwell in and around it." From the time you came into our world, you have given us so much joy. Who would have ever thought you would have grown into a young man of 6'2". It is no wonder that those who come in contact with you soon learn your warmth, smile and love of life. Most of all your love of horses. Congratulations 2nd Generation Turner Grad.

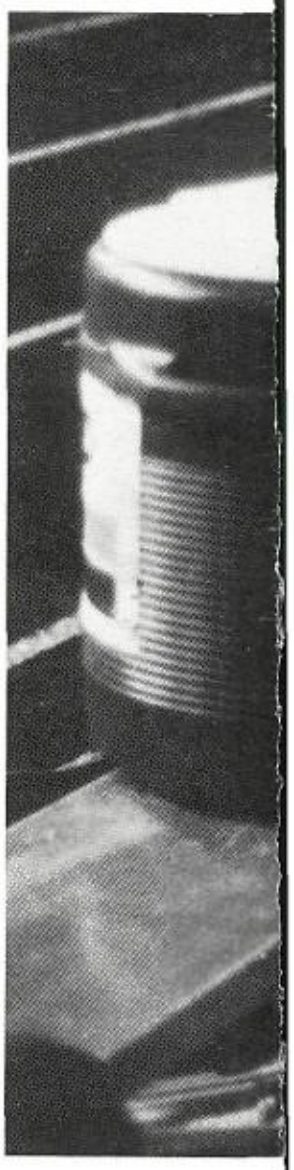
The R.L. Turner Banner is lifted high to show spirit in pregame activities at the football game against Newman Smith in November.

Many memories

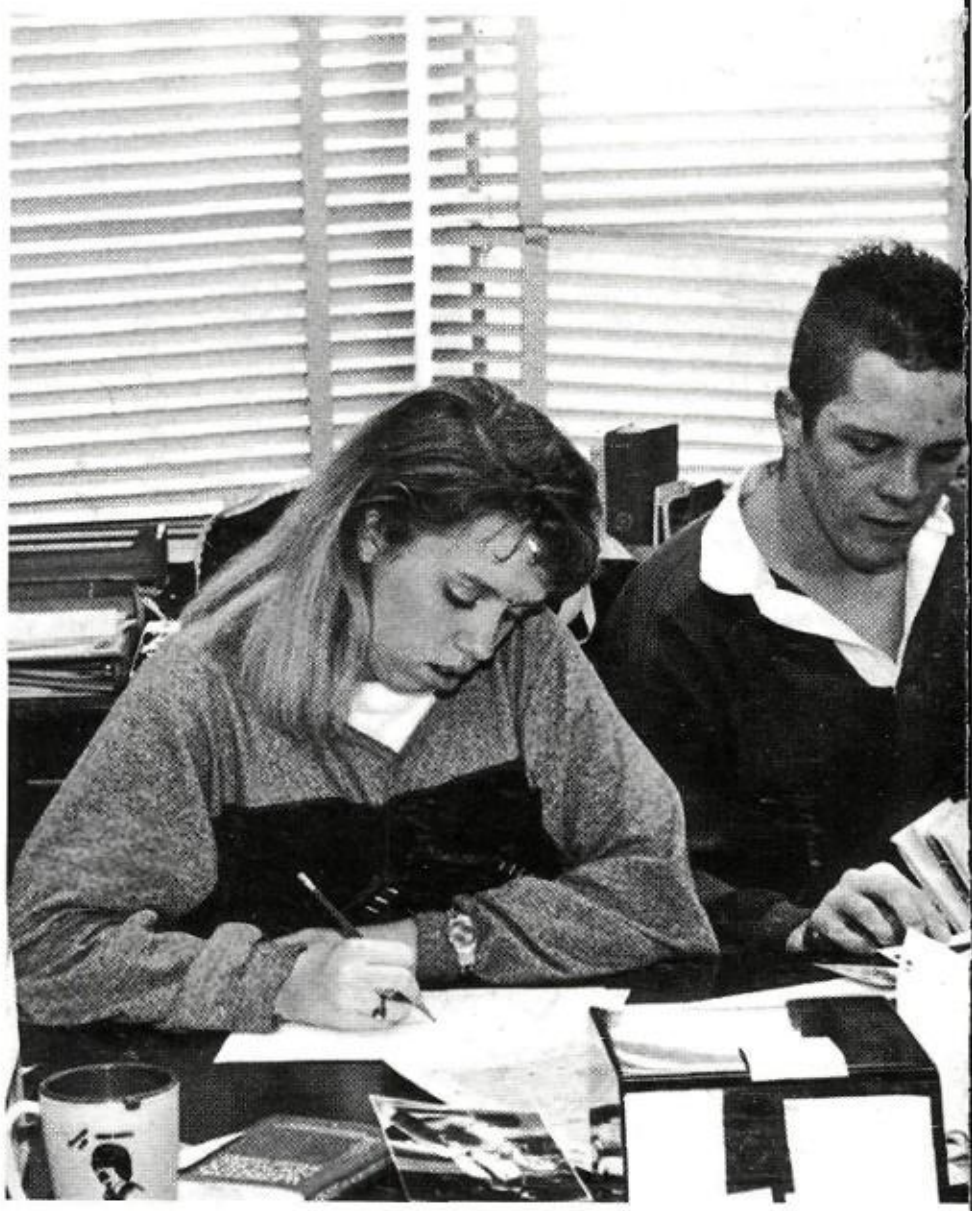
Lions maintain their pride

1988 holds many memories — New Science Wing . . . Evaluation from Southern Association . . . High S.A.T. scores . . . former principal J. T. Parish retires from district after 29 years . . . Leap Year . . . Election year . . . several new teachers and coaches . . . new Apple Macintosh computers for the journalism department . . . Varsity volleyball team is bi-district champs . . . trash-can bomb set off in A-Hall . . . Vandals strike field house and school with cans of spray paint . . . Gary Hart, Jimmy Swaggart, Jim and Tammy Bakker scandals . . . pass period lessened to six minutes . . . locks put on long lockers in upstairs B-Hall . . . Oliver North hearings . . . Athletic Trainer Thomas Phillips resigns . . .

The 1987-88 Roar Staff hopes this yearbook will hold as many good memories for you as it does for us.



One morning before school, seniors Shelley Smith and Tammi Davis cram for an upcoming test in the cafeteria.



Junior Kimberly Dean interviews senior wrestler Bo Underwood for the Roar one day after school during February.

Student trainer Danota Malone quickly fills the water bottles at a football game held at Standridge Stadium.

owing her spirit, freshman cheerleader Gin- r Graham performs a skit at the pep rally for e Newman Smith game held in the gym.

Vandals spray painted the field-house doors prior to the Newman Smith football game.

Alma Mater

High upon a lofty hilltop,
Stands our Turner High.
To her we are ever loyal,
For her we'll do or die.
Lift her colors, speed them onward
May they ever fly.
Hail to thee our Alma Mater
Hail to Turner High.
